Golf stars' pull could be key to future of Pfizer site

By Marijke Cox
marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

TEMPORARY high-speed rail services to Sandwich for golf fans keen to see Tiger Woods and his fellow stars in The Open could be a key factor in attracting businesses to the soon-to-be empty Pfizer site.

Rail operator Southeastern said running High Speed 1 to Sandwich over the course of the four-day tournament in July was an opportunity to make a case to government that services should be extended permanently.

Spokesman for the operator, Jon Hay-Campbell, said HS1 at The Open would highlight the benefits and costs of running trains to Sandwich and Deal.

A feasibility report is currently being drawn up by the company, driven by Pfizer's shock announcement in February that the drugs giant would be leaving the area, with a potential 3,300 job losses.

"We're looking at how to improve all the train services – not just high speed – for east Kent," he said.

"We should complete that in the next few weeks and the taskforce set up after Pfizer's decision will take it to central government and see if funding can be secured. Provided suitable funding is found these improvements will be possible."

He added: "The Open is a chance to highlight the benefits and factors involved with running high-speed trains to

THE OPEN

'Southeastern's 'fast link' is a bad joke so far'

Sandwich and Deal. We're taking full advantage of it."

With HS1, passenger journey times from London St Pancras to Sandwich would be slashed from 135 minutes to 80 minutes.

But currently high-speed services do not reach Sandwich or Deal and campaigners have been lobbying Dover MP Charlie Elphicke, MP for South Thanet Laura Sandys and North Thanet MP Roger Gale to improve services in east Kent.

Mr Gale has been campaigning for better train services, claiming the high-speed service from the Isle of Thanet did not reach high speeds until Ashford or Ebbsfleet and the 'classic service' had been cut.

He said: "Southeastern's 'fast link' is a bad joke so far as commuters are concerned as door-to-door journey times now take longer and cost more than ever."

The campaign was stepped up in the wake of the Pfizer announcement and the taskforce – chaired by Kent County Council leader Cllr Paul Carter – released a report setting out the need for improved transport links in a bid to attract investment and business to the area.

Chief executive of Thanet and East Kent Chamber, David Foley, welcomed news of the high-speed link to Sandwich during The Open, but stressed that once every 10 years was not enough.

He said: "Businesses here need fast rail links to London, but actually high speed is not high speed. There are obvious ways of speeding it up."

"Folkestone has two stations with two high-speed stops within a mile of each other, while other towns have nothing."

"I'm sure Folkestone residents wouldn't mind walking just one mile rather than others having to travel to Dover or Ramsgate from Sandwich or Deal to get the HS1. We have to get rid of this silly situation."

Mr Foley said with the opening of the Turner Contemporary in Margate last week it was vital links were improved to attract people from London, including a Manston Parkway station.

He added: "We're the largest business support organisation in Thanet and Dover and we look forward to working with Southeastern."

"We met the company at a Dover Pride event, but we now look forward to detailed discussions with them to maximise the benefits for eastern Kent and the coastal community in this area."

KCC leader Cllr Paul Carter said the authority had been working with Southeastern to explore possibilities.

A spokesman at County Hall said it was a long-term desire to enhance rail services to east Kent, as set out in the KCC Rail Action Plan.

KCC FINANCE

Expenses don't add up at County Hall

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

A REVIEW into payroll at County Hall has uncovered multiple failings resulting in incorrect expenses payments to staff.

The findings were revealed in a report at a governance meeting at Dover District Council where internal auditors identified failings within the processes used at Kent County Council relating to benefits-in-kind payments, which are non-wage compensations on top of an employee's salary.

This includes expenses for items such as fuel, or equipment including laptops and company cars, which could have potential tax liabilities for staff.

KCC provides a payroll service to Dover council as part of a partnership with the four east Kent authorities which includes Shepway, Thanet and Canterbury.

Auditors at Dover carried out an internal review to ensure payments made to its staff through KCC payroll were accurate.

But a summary of findings reported

GOVERNANCE: Internal auditors identified errors in the expenses process at KCC that there were multiple failings within the processes at County Hall.

The report revealed this had "resulted in the incorrect payment of tax and National Insurance, incorrect payment of mileage and expenses, and the supply of equipment that could result in a taxable benefit charge to the employee".

It went on to state that "significant areas of improvement had been identified" with tighter internal control required surrounding the payment of mileage by KCC.

KCC's corporate director of human resources, Amanda Beer, said the errors identified – which she said related to the payment of expenses only – were corrected when they were first highlighted by the auditors and before the report was published.

She stated that no money was lost by the councils or any member of staff.

"All appropriate tax and National Insurance was paid to HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC)," she said.

"KCC took immediate action to make minor system adjustments to ensure future payments would be calculated correctly."

She added: "Follow-up checks by auditors have confirmed that all the payroll related issues identified have been resolved. Errors were corrected in-year immediately after identification."

"All submissions made to HMRC were corrected and the end of year submissions were fully accurate."

In the review, a limited level of assurance was noted regarding benefits-in-kind payments at KCC.

In the report, a response was made by DDC's management stating that recommendations arising from the audit had been shared with both the HR partnership at the four councils and KCC.

KENT POLICE

Watchdog bites back over criticism of £150k police magazine bill

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

KENT Police Authority has defended spending almost £150,000 producing glossy publications, claiming it was the best way to inform the public about policing.

Figures from campaign group the Taxpayers' Alliance revealed that KPA spent more than any other police authority in England and Wales on its Local Policing Summary in the 2010-11 financial year. Authorities are required by law to produce the summary, which informs people about policing where they live, but some put it on their websites for free.

KPA, however, produced the award-winning Policing Kent magazine, costing £68,801, as well as the Policing Kent newspaper at £79,172, although production of the latter has now stopped.

The total cost was more than any of the other 43 police authorities in England and Wales.

But chairwoman of KPA Ann Barnes said she would make no apologies for the publications.

"The police authority has a duty, by law, to inform local people about what the police are doing, how they're performing and future priorities," she said.

"We believe the best and most cost-effective way to reach everyone is by posting 13 district-based magazines through letterboxes.

"Publishing information online does not reach all cross-sections of the community. It's important we reassure people, even in times of change, that good quality policing continues. We know from research by MORI, a leading market research company in the UK, that the public wants to know what their local police are doing."

Mrs Barnes said it was more vital than ever that people understood what was going on due to the massive shake-up in policing.

A spokeswoman for the authority added that printing Policing Kent on gloss paper was cheaper than matt and the cost of the magazine worked out at roughly 9p per household.

"Feedback from the public has continued to be positive," she said. "Young and old, and especially those who are vulnerable, find it useful to know who their police contact is. Online publications are not as effective."

But director of Taxpayers' Alliance Matthew Sinclair said savings needed to be made.

"Lots of police authorities already publish their Local Policing Summary online, costing taxpayers next to nothing," he said.

"This is just one example of how spending can be cut to minimise the pressure on frontline services. Communicating the work of the police to the public shouldn't cost the earth and doesn't require a glossy magazine."

The Alliance said the amount KPA spent could have been used to pay for the employment of a police officer.

NEWS IN BRIEF

➔ Illegal workers caught

FIFTY young people were found working illegally during an employment check by Medway Council.

More than 90 shops and workplaces were visited during National Child Employment fortnight by council staff.

Investigations are being made relating to another 11 young people where employers were not sure if work permits had been applied for.

Employers who break child employment legislation could face fines up to £1,000.

➔ Keeping track online

KENT'S rail passengers and operating companies will be gathering to debate the future of rail services in the county – and you can watch the meeting live.

Commuters and rail user groups, train operator Southeastern and track company Network Rail will air their views at the third Kent Rail Summit at County Hall.

The meeting at 6pm on April 27, will be broadcast online at www.kent.gov.uk.

➔ 15 years for sex abuser

A PAEDOPHILE who subjected two young girls to three years of systematic abuse was given a 15-year sentence by Maidstone Crown Court.

Billy Evans, of St George's Avenue, Sheerness, was found guilty of 11 counts of sexual abuse against the two girls during a seven-day trial.

The 28-year-old electrician had denied the charges, including rape and indecent assault.

Alongside the sentence Evans will stay on the sex offenders' register for life. He was also given a sexual offences prevention order, banning him from unsupervised contact with children.

ROYAL WEDDING

It's celebration time after late surge in number of applications for royal wedding street parties

HUNDREDS of people will be toasting the Royal nuptials with their friends and neighbours on Friday, following a surge in the number of approved street parties.

The amount of road closure applications at Kent County Council soared to 180 just before the closing date on Friday, April 15.

Early figures of just 54 suggested the county would not be pulling out all the stops to celebrate the marriage of Prince William to Kate Middleton on Friday, April 29.

But applications came flying in just as the deadline loomed.

County Hall chiefs put the high demand down to the authority waiving its charges for parties in quiet, residential roads and by simplifying the application process.

Director of Kent Highways John Burr said: "This is a very special occasion and we wanted to make it easy for our residents to enjoy the Royal couple's big day."

"We are pleased that so many people will be able to join in the national celebrations."

Maidstone tops the list with 22 street parties; then Sevenoaks and Tunbridge Wells both with 17; Thanet with 16; Tonbridge and Malling with 14; Shepway and Canterbury with 13; Dover 12; Gravesham 11; Swale and Dartford 10; and Ashford six.

LOCAL ELECTIONS

Tory chief denies poorest parts of Kent are losing funding to the North

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

TORY peer Baroness Warsi has become the latest senior politician to visit the county in a bid to win over the public ahead of the local elections.

Just days after Labour leader Ed Miliband's visit to Gravesend and Deal on Monday, the Conservative Party chairman officially launched the Tory Party's campaign on a whistle-stop tour of Kent.

Baroness Sayeeda Warsi – the first Muslim woman to be appointed to the cabinet – told KoS that despite governing parties historically doing poorly in local elections, she was hopeful people could see the work being carried out by the Tories.

"I make it a rule not to predict election results, but it's clear we have a high base to defend at these elections," she said.

"What we've seen in Kent is Conservative-run councils doing a magnificent job of delivering more for less in a tough financial climate.

"Take Medway Council, where they're halving the annual payment to trade unions – saving local taxpayers almost £50,000. Or Gravesham, where they've plans to share a chief executive with Tonbridge and Malling Council, saving both councils thousands of pounds."

Every council in Kent is Tory run, and the party could suffer if anger at Coalition cuts proves widespread amongst voters.

Baroness Warsi defended claims that Kent continually misses out to the North on financial help from government due to the view the South East is more prosperous.

Kent County Council leader Cllr Paul Carter said last week – after learning the county would not receive a penny from the £450 million Regional Growth Fund – that Kent should be given the same chances as others to grow.

But Baroness Warsi said her party was focussed on getting growth going across the country.

"The South East part of Britain is one of the economic powerhouses of Europe, but there's no law saying this will be the case forever.

"That's why Conservatives are rolling up their

ON THE STUMP: Baroness Warsi says Tory councils are providing more public services for less money sleeves and making sure the south east builds on its success and goes from strength to strength."

Baroness Warsi also called on people in Kent to say no to the alternative vote.

"First, AV is unfair. With first-past-the-post, everybody gets one vote. But under AV, supporters of extreme parties like the BNP have more of their votes counted than those who back mainstream parties. Second, AV is weird and perverse – because the candidate who comes third can end up coming first. Third, AV is a discredited system used by only three countries in the world."

NEWS IN BRIEF

➔ Rhinos killed for cure

MORE than 70 African rhinos have been slaughtered this year in South Africa just for their horns, and the Aspinall Foundation has called on the British government to act.

The foundation, which runs wild animal parks at Port Lympne and Howletts in east Kent, says crime syndicates have killed more than 800 African rhinos in the past three years, with rhino horns destined for the Asian medicinal markets driving the poaching epidemic.

➔ Getaway destination

MORE than half-a-million people are expected to travel through the county over the course of the bank holiday weekend as part of the big Easter getaway.

Ferry companies will see more than 400,000 people travel through the ports, while Eurotunnel is expecting to carry more than 150,000 passengers over the Easter holidays.

➔ Takes hole lotta fixing

KENT County Council's 'Find and Fix' pothole attack started this week with small and medium-sized local tarmac firms repairing roads across the county.

Each district will have a contractor tackling faults its crews come across as they work on the county's roads. Last year's campaign saw 31,000 potholes filled.

To report a fault ring Kent Highway Services on 08458 247 800 or visit www.kent.gov.uk/highways.

ARMED FORCES

Military Cross awarded to brave corporal who shielded injured comrades in Afghan ambush

AN HEROIC soldier who risked his life to rescue two stricken comrades is set to receive a Military Cross for his selfless act of bravery.

Corporal James Bedford, who is based at the Royal School of Military Engineering in Chatham, braved enemy fire to rush to the aid of his soldiers who lay shot and pinned down in the open.

The 29-year-old's six-man Royal Engineer search team had come under fire in the Nahr-e-Saraj District of central Helmand, Afghanistan, on June 10, 2010.

While others took cover behind a wall, Cpl Bedford immediately ran forward, in full view of the enemy, and with no covering fire.

He deliberately placed his body between the casualties and the incoming enemy fire before administering life-saving first aid to the seriously injured soldier while directing others forward to deal with the other casualty.

A shot struck Cpl Bedford's equipment on his back, narrowly missing his head and throwing him forward.

Despite the hit, the corporal continued to shield the injured soldier before carrying him into cover.

Cpl Bedford, who is married with two young children, said: "Getting the award was a complete surprise, I really hadn't expected anything like that."

Recalling his equipment being hit by a bullet, he added: "I was more concerned about my colleague really."

His wife Rachel also had a surprise for him.

"She was happy for me, but I hadn't told her about the incident, when she heard that she gave me a clout round the head," he said.

METAL THEFT

Even war memorial not safe from the scrap metal thieves

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

CALLOUS scrap metal thieves have desecrated a memorial put up to remember a group of soldiers who died in World War Two, including of The Few.

As scrap values continue to creep higher in the global recession, the county is seeing the return of thieves stealing almost anything made from metal, no matter what emotional stress they leave in their wake.

Police say it was heartless to take the plaque from the memorial erected to remember 15 men who fell during the war.

Officers believe the only reason it was targeted was because it was made from brass. It was engraved with the names of the dead men, who were from River, near Dover.

The thieves removed it from the grounds of the parish church of St Peter and St Paul.

Rev Andy Bawtree said the thieves seem to have completely ignored what the plaque symbolised and how important it was to residents.

He said: "This is nothing like the usual lead from a church roof being taken. This was something that made the loss of those men something personal to the village.

"It symbolises the love and the sacrifice that others have given and this is the ultimate sacrifice in giving their lives.

"When something like this happens, it leaves you with an empty gutted feeling. They really do not appear to care.

"The village put the money forward for a new one in the Millennium and it cost around £1,200, although the scrap value will be a fraction of that.

"One of the names on the plaque was Keith Gillman who was one of The Few. He was a poster boy for the RAF and lived in the village and went to school locally.

"I think he was only 19, so may have been the same age as those who took the plaque.

"This is not just something that has been pinched from the church – it goes to the heart of the community."

CHURCH THEFT

Vicar's anger as ancient church chairs are stolen

TWO ancient ornate seats stolen from a picturesque church are needed back, because the vicar uses one regularly for her services.

Kent Police are investigating the theft of two ornate wooden bishop's chairs that were stolen from St Mary's & All Saints Church in Boxley, near Maidstone, on the afternoon of Tuesday, April 12.

Rev Susan Hollins said: "I am very angry. One of the chairs appeared in the church inventory in 1860 and it may well have been in the church a long time before then, too.

"And these were not simply two chairs left sitting in a corner and never used. They are jolly useful chairs. For example I sit on one of them when I take Sunday service, the Holy Communion, when I sit in the middle of the chancel steps.

"Whenever we have a bishop visiting, he sits on one of them. And when we have a wedding, of which we have many, the bride and groom sit on them.

"They do not just sit in the corner looking pretty, they are extensively used. That's why we are so cross someone has decided they would like them more than we would."

She added: "A pair of cafeteria chairs just won't look the same."

There was a member of the congregation working in the churchyard at the time of the theft along with a man and his family taking a stroll through the grounds.

The visitor spotted two men loading the chairs into a silver hatchback at around 4.15pm after they were taken from the chancel and nave of the church.

Anyone with information can contact police in Maidstone on 01622 604210 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111, quoting crime reference CY/5634/11.

No summer hosepipe ban, says water firm

SOUTHERN Water says that despite the scorching April weather, stocks are high and it does not expect there to be a hosepipe ban this summer.

Bewl Water reservoir at Lamberhurst, is 96 per cent full, having been boosted by rainfall during the 'recharge season' of October to March.

Water strategy manager Meyrick Gough said: "From a resource perspective, we are in a better-than-average position, and do not envisage having to impose a hosepipe ban this summer."

Southern Water supplies water to two million customers in Kent, Sussex, Hampshire and the Isle of Wight.

EASTER EGGS

Call for crack down on Easter eggs wrapping

A KENT Lib Dem MEP has urged manufacturers to reduce the amount of packaging used to wrap Easter eggs.

Despite Government rules which require manufacturers to reduce packaging to a bare minimum, many Easter eggs still come wrapped in foil, plastic and cardboard.

This year Mars and Cadbury have reduced the size and weight of their packaging and Nestle is the only company whose packaging is 100 per cent recyclable.

MEP Sharon Bowles said: "For those that recycle, excess packaging amounts to more hassle. In short, manufacturers need to do better to reduce their packaging."

ELECTORAL REFORM

Labour and Tories join forces to fight Lib Dem AV campaign

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

POLITICAL rivals have set aside traditional differences to fight against changes to the voting system.

It comes as campaigns for and against the alternative vote (AV) gather pace ahead of the referendum on May 5.

In a bid to convince the public to stick with the current first-past-the-post system (FPTP), Tory and Labour politicians in Folkestone have joined forces.

Tory MP for Folkestone and Hythe Damian Collins and Shepway Labour Party's Donald Worsley launched the No To AV campaign's latest billboard. "This is an issue that unites politicians from across the spectrum," said Mr Collins. "FPTP ensures the candidate who receives the most votes wins. It is simple, creates strong governments and is the most widely-used system in the world."

Under AV, candidates are ranked in order of preference, but if no-one wins more than 50 per cent of the vote, the contender with the lowest number of first-choice votes has their votes redistributed. This process is continued until someone has at least 50 per cent of votes.

POLL: Voters will be asked whether they want to change the way we select MPs

"Under AV, those who voted for the bottom candidate effectively have their votes counted twice," said Mr Collins.

Those against FPTP say it is out dated, not fair, and a large number of people's votes are wasted.

Arguments against AV are that it would allow minor extremist parties more chance of political power, and it is too complicated and expensive.

A Kent Lib Dems spokesman said:

"Your next MP would have to aim to get more than 50 per cent of the vote to be sure of winning. At present they can be handed power with just one vote in three. It's a long overdue upgrade to make a 19th century system fit for the politics of the 21st century."

Kent Green Party is not campaigning in the referendum because members were split between 'yes' supporters and those who want proportional representation.

ASPARAGUS SEASON

Early harvest spear delight

By Jenna Pudelek

jenna.pudelek@archant.co.uk

KENTISH asparagus has sprouted a couple of weeks earlier this year – thanks to the warm weather the county has been enjoying.

Groombridge-based grower Stephen Barnes said the early start would prolong the season but could put the plants under more stress later in the year.

The delicious spring shoots, which are a great source of various vitamins and dietary fibre, thrive in the mild South East and are available now in farm shops and supermarkets.

Mr Barnes, of Birchden Farm, said: "It's a very short season so people should come and get it fresh and direct from the growers because the fresher it is the better it tastes."

He said the season usually lasts eight weeks, which from May to June, but because of the early start it could stretch for another week.

He added: "People should not be afraid to over-indulge while it's available."

Healthy asparagus is low in calories, fat, carbohydrate, sodium and is cholesterol free. It contains vitamins A, B1, C and E. And our home-grown harvest is hailed by leading chefs as the best in the world.

It is also known to help fight cancer, protect against heart disease and boost the immune system. It is also said to even boost your sex drive.

The vegetable was claimed to 'stir up lust in man and woman' by herbalist Nicholas Culpeper in the 1600s and the debate surrounding its aphrodisiac qualities continues to this day.

Explaining the early harvest, Mr Barnes said: "Asparagus responds well to temperature particularly when the soil reaches 15C – it starts to

HOT TIPS: Asparagus season has arrived early grow very quickly. Because of the good weather and hot sun over the last few weeks the soil temperature rose and we started early. It's good because the season lasts longer, but it could put the plants under more stress later in the year."

Experts warn not to over-cook asparagus, which can be steamed in three to four minutes. It is traditionally eaten with your fingers.

Growers say the big freeze before Christmas and the warm, dry spring are behind the early appearance of the vegetable.

Archbishop lends voice to tour

THE Archbishop of Canterbury has contributed to a new audio tour for St Augustine's Abbey in Canterbury, one of the oldest and most important monastic sites in England.

On the free audio tour, Dr Rowan Williams speaks about the importance of St Augustine – the Benedictine monk who was sent by the Pope to England to convert people to Christianity. St Augustine became the first Archbishop of Canterbury in the year AD 598 and is considered by some to be the founder of the Church of England.

Dr Williams said: "I have visited St Augustine's Abbey many times for its peace and tranquillity."

POLITICS

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

LABOUR leader Ed Miliband has vowed to change the political landscape in Kent, saying there should be no all-blue areas.

On a visit to the county on Monday, he said he was determined to wipe out "no-go" zones, where every council in Kent is Tory-run and all the MPs are Conservative.

He admitted Labour had a mountain to climb to win back support in the county. "I think it is important there are no 'no-go' zones," he said.

"I want us to win back trust and the issues we are raising such as the squeeze on people's living standards are very real."

During his visit Mr Miliband spoke to staff at Deal's Citizens Advice Bureau about the scale of government cuts to services.

But he admitted that had his party won last year's general election there would still have been under cuts under Labour.

Asked whether Labour would have been more successful in last year's election had the alternative vote system been in place, Mr Miliband – who just hours before had united in support of AV alongside Lib Dem business secretary Vince Cable – said: "I can't guess what would have happened."

"In the referendum, voters need to look past Nick Clegg and David Cameron. This is a chance to make a change and I hope people will take advantage of this opportunity."

Focusing on May 5 district elections, Mr Miliband would not predict whether he thought Labour would be successful.

areas like Kent, I hope they will vote for Labour."

Mr Miliband said he was disappointed about the looming departure of Pfizer and regretted the loss of regional development agencies such as Seeda.

"What we have to learn from the financial crisis is the need to have a broad industrial basis," he said. "There needs to be a focus on every area of manufacturing in Britain."

He added an east Kent Enterprise Zone in may not go far enough to help the local economy recover from the drugs giant's departure.

A taskforce set up to lessen the impact on east Kent is bidding for the area to become a Government's Enterprise Zones.

Businesses moving to the area would receive tax breaks and lenient planning rules. Mr Miliband said: "I'm all for anything that will help but I'm sceptical the scale of intervention needed will be met by enterprise zones."

SEX ABUSE CLAIM

Priest accused of child sex abuse found dead at home

By Jenna Pudelek

jenna.pudelek@archant.co.uk

A CATHOLIC priest facing allegations of sexual assault against a child has been found dead at his home.

Police said they were not treating the death of Monsignor Michael Smith, who was parish priest of Corpus Christi Church in Tonbridge, as suspicious, and that a post mortem would be held to establish cause of death.

His temporary withdrawal from his position in December sparked shockwaves in the community, with police launching a probe into the allegations.

Monsignor Smith, then 63, was arrested on suspicion of assault on December 7, 2010.

No charges had been brought and a police spokeswoman said he had been given bail while enquiries were carried out.

Officers discovered his body when they were called to an address in Poynder Drive, Snodland at 8.50pm last Sunday.

A member of the church said they were "devastated" at the news and added: "We cannot believe it. It was distressing enough to hear of the allegations made against him, but to hear this news is appalling."

Father Philip Glandfield, private secretary to the Archbishop of Southwark, from the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Southwark, which covers Kent, said: "It was with great sadness that we heard the unexpected death of Monsignor Smith, parish priest of Corpus Christi parish, Tonbridge."

"Our hearts go out to his mother and family, and the parishioners of Corpus Christi parish whom Mgr Smith served for the past 19 years."

"We are waiting for the post-mortem examination to determine the cause of his death and funeral arrangements will be published in due course."

"We ask for prayers for the repose of his soul, and for his family and the parishioners of Corpus Christi parish."

The weekend after his arrest last year, the Archbishop of Southwark, Peter Smith, and Bishop John Hine, took mass at the Lyons Crescent church.

The Archbishop told the congregation it was "with great sadness" that he had to tell them "an allegation has been made against Monsignor Smith concerning a young person".

Corpus Christi Church, which currently has Tom McElhone as the parish administrator, said that it could not comment on Monsignor Smith's death or the allegations.

The police spokeswoman said: "Police were called to an address in Poynder Drive, Snodland at 8.53pm on Sunday, April 17, where the body of a deceased man was found. The matter is not being treated as suspicious and the coroner's office has been informed."

DOG TRIALS

PC Sam's top dog at UK trials

KENT Police have Britain's top female dog handler after the officer scooped the top prize at a major national event.

PC Samantha Appleby took top honours at the National Police Dog Trials with four-year-old German shepherd Victor (pictured), after impressing the judges with her cool approach and commanding ability of her dog.

She said: "I was thrilled to represent Kent Police and it's an honour to be the UK's top female dog handler."

Overall Kent's dog handlers came eighth out of 22 entrants.

ART

Images focused on a year in our lives

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

THIS time next year, fans of photography will be able to see how three areas of Kent have changed on a daily basis over 12 months.

Some 178 keen snappers on the Isle of Sheppey, Canterbury, and Faversham, have so far signed up to take part. And as we move into April the first quarter results are now in.

It's called The Year in the Life project, and judging panels select one picture per day out of all the daily submissions.

These will then make it into various events in 2012, including exhibitions and books.

Deciding which images made the cut meant the trio of panels, one for each area, looked at things like creativity, originality, cultural/historical interest, composition, story, subject, interpretation of the area and ability to catch the viewers' attention.

Organisers said the judges are from various backgrounds to ensure the results reflect a representative portrait of each area.

In Canterbury for instance, one of the judges, artist David Hayward, said: "Judging is different from most other selection procedures I've been involved with. The competition is open to professionals and amateurs, young and old."

"Their experience varies enormously and the cameras they use can range from expensive SLRs to small digitals and even mobile phones."

Along with fellow judges, Canterbury city centre co-ordinator Philippe Esclasse and photographer Richard Walton, he has ploughed through hundreds of shots to strike the right balance.

It is the same with the other two areas. Some 52 photographers are working in Faversham, and will be judged by Anne Maclaren, the director at Creek Creative, photographer Peter Smith, town mayor Anita Walker and Laurence Young, from Faversham Enterprise Partnership.

Mr Young said: "The emphasis on people working and going about their daily lives against a backdrop of local scenes gives a fresh angle".

On Sheppey, 36 photographers are at work and their efforts will be judged by a panel including head of community cohesion at the Isle of Sheppey Academy Paul Murray, Sioux Peto of Swale Arts Forum, resident Stan Rayfield, and Samantha Williams, assistant headteacher and director of learning at the academy.

Ms Williams said: "The pictures submitted represented scenes from the island, providing us with a rich source of imagery that had captured the true essence and character of the isle."

TRIBUTE

Grieving mother: I feel like I have lost a little bit of me

By Mathew Beech

mathew.beech@archant.co.uk

THE mother of a teenage boy killed in a tragic canoe accident on Sunday, has paid a moving tribute to him.

Cameron Sandell, 14, from Hunston, near Maidstone, died while out on the River Medway.

The experienced canoeist capsized at the weir at Teston Lock. Unable to right himself, onlookers started a desperate attempt to try and save him, but the strength of the water prevented a safe rescue.

His parents Sue, 45, and Peter Sandell, 47, and their daughter Hannah have been devastated by his loss.

His mother said: "It's impossible to put into words how much he will be missed, I feel like I have lost a little bit of me."

"The house is empty without him, he was larger than life and when Cameron was round you would feel his presence. He was such a big part of our lives."

Mr Sandell added: "He was my shadow. We used to go hunting and salmon fishing together, which was one of Cameron's passions and we'd have the time to set the world to rights."

"He had this great ability to make other people laugh, with the most fantastic sense of humour."

Cameron's older sister Hannah said: "I thought the world of him. We got on really well and were great friends, enjoying each other's company."

"Last week we were able to spend some quality time together and I will treasure those memories."

While paddling on the river, Cameron and a friend approached the Teston Lock sluice gate and weir, when the 14-year-old capsized. They entered the fast moving water at about 11.20am.

Bystanders pulled him free of his canoe, but were unable to pull him to safety due to the strong flow of the water.

Mrs Sandell said: "I would like to thank everyone who tried to help Cameron and we appreciate that every effort was made to try and save him."

Cameron was a competent and experienced canoeist, having participated in the sport for four years, gaining a national qualification.

The teenager was also a keen member of the Scouts and planned to study hard in the hope that he would go to Sandhurst to train to be an officer. He had originally planned to enlist in the Royal Air Force, but it was not recruiting, so he turned his sights on the Army.

Grant Scamell who owns the Kent Canoes Shop that hired the boats to the teenagers was devastated at the news.

He said: "What happened was a tragic accident."

"It is a small community here we are all very upset about it."

"I know the whole of the river and it is used regularly, but a young man tragically got caught out."

The date of the funeral is yet to be set, but it is expected to take place at Yalding Church, which is affiliated with the local Scouts.

CELEBRITY

Hospice stepped in when bubble burst

By Jenna Pudelek

jenna.pudelek@archant.co.uk

THE daughter of the notorious lady's man and bon viveur Sir Dai Llewellyn has spoken poignantly about his final days spent in a Kent hospice with his family.

Arabella Llewellyn told how the Champagne bubble burst on her father's party lifestyle after he was diagnosed with cancer, and lovingly described the man behind the headlines.

Sir Dai died on January 13, 2009, after a short and painful struggle with the illness.

A colourful Welsh baronet and son of the gold-medal-winning Olympic showjumper Sir Harry Llewellyn, he had led the life of an international lothario in the 1960s and 70s and his links with various society girls and models were played out in the gossip columns of the day.

Ms Llewellyn, 27, has raised more than £11,000 for Hospice in the Weald since her father's death, climbing Mount Kilimanjaro, running the London Marathon, and the Tunbridge Wells half marathon.

She said: "He was only 62, although a friend remarked soon after he died, that 'for all the hours he was awake, partying the night away, he was really 95'. As a little girl I had been in awe of this man who spoke five languages, told wondrous stories, made friends everywhere, and who kept wine bottles and salami in his briefcase.

"As I grew up, we became the best of friends. He taught me to love travel and wine, why there was only one place to buy moustache wax, how to swear almost anywhere in the world, never to wear jeans at night, and to wear high-heels at every opportunity.

"When he was diagnosed with cancer, this world of bubbles and laughter became one of needles, pills and frowns."

He wrote an article in the Daily Mail in 2008, describing the day he collapsed in agony while visiting friends in Kent, which led to him discovering he was suffering from anaemia, diabetes, prostate cancer and cirrhosis of the liver.

Sir Dai said he knew immediately the root cause of his various conditions was alcohol

He wrote about his privileged lifestyle, then said: "There's no difference between an alcohol diseased body in a hospital bed, whether it belongs to an old Etonian baronet like myself or a guy sleeping rough on the street. The damage is the same."

Ms Llewellyn, who lived in Edenbridge with her family before moving to London, spoke about finding much-needed support from Hospice in the Weald, at its site in Pembury.

"None of us were prepared for the speed with which his condition deteriorated," she said. "At the lowest point, an incredible hospice stepped in and helped him.

"An oasis in a sea of agony and injections, the Hospice in the Weald provided Dad with the most wonderful care.

"As a family it was so confusing and we could ask the hospice and they gave us guidance, we felt we could ask anything.

"We could come in whenever we wanted and at times we stole him away to the pub and he flirted with the nurses, but they didn't mind.

"We were so lucky to have been able to say goodbye to Dad as his children rather than his carers, and to know he died peacefully and with dignity."

Ms Llewellyn has spent the two years since her father's death supporting the hospice through fundraising.

She added: "I will never be able to truly thank the Hospice in the Weald, but by raising money for them, we can help others to benefit too."

ENVIRONMENT

If you use the toilet as a dustbin, the rubbish ends up on our beaches

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

A NEW marine report has revealed a shocking rise in the amount of sanitary waste found on beaches.

It has prompted the Marine Conservation Society (MCS), which carried out the Beachwatch study, to urge the public to support the organisation's 'bag it and bin it - don't flush it' campaign and to stop using toilets as a watery dustbin.

New figures for last year showed that in the South East region a total of 90,906 items of litter, an average of 1,564 per beach, including bathroom waste, plastic and fishing rubbish, were collected from 101 beaches - an eight per cent rise since 2009.

Nineteen of Kent's beaches were included in the MCS study, although the organisation said it would not name and shame any specific sites.

Items found included cotton buds, condoms, sanitary towels and tampon applicators.

MCS Beachwatch officer Lauren Davis said the figures revealed a shocking picture of what people do in the privacy of their own bathroom.

"Increasingly people seem to be putting things down their loos that belong in the bin," she said.

"Cotton buds, condoms, tampons, tampon applicators and sanitary towels are being flushed away with an 'out of sight, out of mind' perception. But sewerage networks are not specifically designed to remove these sort of items and unfortunately more and more are ending up in our rivers and then on our beaches."

SeaFrance Dover-Calais ferries is lead sponsor on the Beachwatch project, which is the UK's largest beach litter survey. Managing director of the Channel operator Robin Wilkins said the figures were truly startling.

"We are aware of the type of bathroom litter than ends up on our seashores from our own beach cleans at Kingsdown. "It doesn't cost anything to throw these items into a bin rather than flushing them down a toilet."

Since 2008, SeaFrance customers have raised more than half a million pounds to ensure the continued success of the survey. Staff also clean Kingsdown Beach near the company's Dover headquarters four times a year. To get involved go to www.seafrancecleanseas.com.

CONSERVATION

Coastline protection

CLIFFS and underwater chalk areas along the coast of Dover could become protected under plans to create preservation areas in British seas.

The area was put forward to the Balanced Seas Marine Conservation Zone project, which recommends sites for protection to Government. The chalk is a surface for plants and animals to attach to, but is also soft enough for burrowing animals.

WORLD WAR ONE

pictures: GRAHAM MAJIN

HERO: Captain William Nevill

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

A VISIT to the fields of blood that were once the scene of some of the fiercest fighting of World War One has also become the location of a chance in a million find for a Kent teenager – one of four special footballs British troops took to the frontline.

George Majin, 13, spotted the ball on top of a fridge in a French café near the fields that saw thousands of men die in the Battle of the Somme.

It looked almost discarded, but the café owner was determined not to let his piece of history come back home to Kent. Spotting it was the culmination of a story packed with chance and amazing coincidence.

George, from Chart Sutton, said he was working on a school history project which required a visit to the World War One battlefields.

Dad Graham said: "George had heard the story of Captain William 'Billie' Nevill, who bought four footballs – one for each of his platoons – and promised to give a prize to the soldier who could get a ball into the German trenches first."

Nevill's 'Football Attack' was celebrated by the newspapers back home as an example of British dash and spirit. But the Germans dismissed it as a prime example of British insanity.

Graham said: "George wanted to visit Nevill's grave in France, so he bought a small football, wrote on it and placed it on the grave."

The student at Oakwood Park Grammar School in Maidstone said: "I think Nevill was very brave and I was glad to do this as a way of remembering him."

However, this moving personal ceremony was just the start of a strange adventure of discovery.

The pair stopped for steak and chips at Le Tommy's – a nearby café on the main Albert-Bapaume road in the middle of the village of Pozières. But as they were about to leave, they noticed an old leather football behind the bar.

Café owner Dominique Zanardi told them several years ago he'd found a rub-

CHANCE FINDING:

George Majin with café owner Dominique Zanardi and the Football Attack ball which was on top of the fridge bish tip in a farmer's field. In this hole in the ground were 10 British backpacks and some ammunition pouches from World War One which he salvaged.

Graham said on one of the backpacks was written '18 Manchesters' which clearly referred to the 18th Battalion of the Manchester Regiment positioned immediately to the right of Nevill's unit on July 1, 1916.

Football fan George, who plays for Staplehurst, said: "In the backpack, Dominique found an old football. On the football was written Gamages, the name of a London shop which sold sports equipment."

"The ball appears to be identical to the two surviving balls. When I found out the restaurant, which we'd randomly visited, had a ball from the attack, I was lost for words.

"To hold the ball was unbelievable. My dad was talking in French to the man behind the bar, who pointed to this old worn out football on top of a fridge."

"My dad went to get his camera and I asked him what was going on. To my amazement he told me this football was probably one of Nevill's lost footballs from July 1, 1916."

"To hold a piece of history in my hands – especially as I had visited Nevill's grave only one hour before, was really exciting."

streets of Gravesend to celebrate Vaisakhi.

The Sikhs welcomed follows of other religions to join in the fun, and enjoy some of the many Indian dishes that were prepared.

The head of the Gravesend's Sikh temple, called a gurdwara, said they were joined by many from other faiths and communities at the procession.

This year's celebrations were centred around the completion of their new £13 million gurdwara which has been under construction since 2002.

Saturday's parade was followed on Sunday with the main Vaisakhi service in the gurdwara, attended by around 2,000 people during the morning and a stream of people throughout the day.

The colourful procession itself was organised by the Gurdwara Management Committee, with thousands of people walking and 25 floats prepared by religious, arts and cultural groups. Such was the attraction, it trailed more than half a mile long as it wound its way through the town centre. During the whole weekend a constant stream of visitors toured the new Gurdwara to view the magnificent building which is the largest of its type in Europe.

President of the gurdwara, Jaspal Singh Dhesi, said: "This is a time of great celebration for Sikhs all over the world, and we in Gravesend have something very special to celebrate.

"I am very proud to have had the privilege and honour of playing a small part in the magnificent achievement of the gurdwara from which the Nagar Kirtan (procession) started. I would like to thank the people of this wonderful town for helping to make this happen.

"We are grateful to Kent Police and Gravesham Borough Council for their support, and to the many organisations that help to make it such a joyous occasion for all communities."

The Chief Constable of Kent, Ian Learmouth, and Gravesham Mayor Bill Lambert congratulated the Sikh community at the start of the procession for the Vaisakhi celebrations. They said Mr Learmouth was particularly grateful for the contributions made by Sikhs to the wider community and congratulated them on the construction of the new gurdwara, which he was visiting for the first time.

Trust makes a buzz over threat to rare bee habitat

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

AS IF the bees of the world haven't got it hard enough already, a power company wants to develop one of the bug's favourite spots in Kent, it is claimed.

The Isle of Grain is a bee haven, but the National Grid wants to destroy it with warehouses, says a group leading the fight against the plans.

Buglife – The Invertebrate Conservation Trust said it is determined to win the day for the humble bee by protecting the 100 hectare wildlife haven on the Isle of Grain.

It said the site is home to a variety of beautiful, rare and endangered insects, including a large population of threatened bumblebee species.

Buglife said the site supports an exceptional area of 'open mosaic habitat' providing lots of pollen and nectar-rich flowers, bare ground ideal for burrowing and basking insects, and pools for aquatic beetles and bugs.

It is home to an array of special plants, reptiles, bumblebees, hoverflies and beetles, including the white eye-stripe hoverfly which until recently was believed to be extinct, and mellet's downy-back beetle which is so rare it has only been seen five times in the UK in the last 20 years.

Among the rare bees are the brown banded carder-bee and shrill carder-bee.

Buglife chief executive Matt Shardlow said: "The site is likely to be one of the most important sites in Britain for rare and endangered invertebrates."

"This is a bug paradise and National Grid's current plans to develop it into a huge business park and lorry depot would destroy it."

Buglife has bitterly criticised National Grid, which it claims has already sprayed large areas of the site with pesticides to eliminate brown-tail moths, but it also resulted in the loss of flowering plants and bushes used by pollinating insects such as bumblebees.

In the first round of legal proceedings at the High Court of Justice, Judge Anthony Thornton QC concluded National Grid must stop spraying the site with pesticides and allow the ecology to recover, before undertaking further surveys to find out how important the wildlife is. However, the group said the judge refused to allow a judicial review of the planning permission.

Mr Shardlow said: "We are not convinced that the proposal to just do more ecological assessments will save the animals. Buglife is appealing this decision; that is the right thing to do for the bumblebees and to ensure future generations of people will benefit from the bees' diligent work pollinating flowers and crops."

A National Grid spokesman said: "We are pleased with the decision to refuse Buglife's application to bring judicial review proceedings against Medway Council for allowing the planning application for commercial development at the Isle of Grain."

"National Grid is committed to protecting the site's ecology. There are some areas which will not be developed to protect existing populations of invertebrates, water voles, reptiles and plants. "We are disappointed Buglife have made an application for leave to appeal and we await the decision on whether this will be granted."

And Medway Council said: "Buglife lost the challenge but the developer will have to submit further studies before the site can be developed."

CHARITY SHOW

Boxing night packs a punch for charities

A BOXING evening organised by the Rotary Club of Thanet and Ramsgate Amateur Boxing Club has raised more than £27,000 for good causes.

More than 500 people attended the event at the Winter Gardens, Margate, which has been running for the last six years.

The local charities that will benefit from the proceedings include Ramsgate Amateur Boxing Club, EKUBS, Cancer Care, RNLI Margate and Ramsgate, St Lawrence Scouts, Oasis, and Thanet Community First Response ambulance service.

DRUGS

Drug addict's mum has sentence upheld

A MOTHER who was jailed for tying up her daughter to stop her buying drugs has lost her appeal against her 12-month sentence.

Julia Saker, 50, from Dover, was jailed in January after pleading guilty to false imprisonment.

She had taped her daughter Tabitha's legs together in an attempt to stop her leaving the house to try and buy heroin.

Mrs Saker was released from prison with a tag. She was appealing for a non-custodial sentence, but judges dismissed her appeal.

RAIL PROTEST

Rail protestors picnic in fight for a fare deal

By Ian Read

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

MORE than 100 demonstrators angry at soaring rail fares staged a peaceful protest at Canterbury West station.

Determined to highlight the rising cost of train travel in the UK, the protestors wore costumes from The Railway Children film – and then held a picnic when they reached the cathedral city.

Having boarded a train at London Bridge last Sunday the Unfair Fare Dodge brigade paid £7 on their Oyster cards and boarded a service to Kent.

The protestors from Climate Rush, which campaigns on environmental issues, claimed that's how much a similar journey in France or Germany costs.

To meet UK fares, they would have needed to have each paid out another £20.

It formed part of a protest which urged the Government, if it wanted to affect climate change, to stop sanctioning massive hikes in fares, forcing people off the rail network and into their cars.

But faced with so many fare dodgers, staff and transport police didn't take any action.

Campaign spokesman Andrew Tarbert said: "We were expecting a confrontation but the staff couldn't have been nicer. I think they secretly agreed with us. At Canterbury, the station master was very nice and let us have our picnic."

Singer Katy Carr, who brought her ukulele to entertain the passengers, said: "We want to see fair fares. We can't see why people have to pay a massive chunk out of their salaries simply to go to work."

"When we got to Canterbury West we had a picnic and a sing song and then got back on the train."

A spokesman for South-eastern trains said: "The demonstrators were very well behaved. It was a genteel protest."

"They made their point which was one for the politicians to deal with."

ROYAL WEDDING

One of UK's biggest royal wedding street parties will be a Commonwealth affair

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

HUNDREDS of revellers will take to the streets in north Kent to celebrate the Royal wedding in what is predicted to be one of the country's biggest street parties.

More than 500 people are due to attend the mass turnout on Thursday outside Gravesham Civic Centre to toast Prince William and Kate Middleton on the eve of their wedding on Friday, April 29.

Organised by the Kent Equality Cohesion Council and the borough council, with support from County Hall, the event is expected to be the biggest outdoor street party in Kent and one of the largest outside London.

Director of the equality council Gurvinder Sandher, who is co-ordinating the party, has been working on the project for several months.

"Events like the Royal Wedding are historic events and I wanted to mark it with a spectacular party which would be remembered in years to come by all those who are there," he said.

"This is an excellent way for all the diverse communities of Gravesham to come together and mark this event."

Around 500 young people from 10 local schools as well as guests are due to attend, in addition to the district's residents who are invited to join in the celebrations.

Before the street party begins, a parade will take place starting at 10am outside the Towncentric Offices in St George's Square, leading up the High Street into New Road, through St George's shopping centre and back onto New Road where the national anthem will be played.

The parade will then travel through Windmill Street and finish outside the civic centre where the celebrations will begin. A free lunchtime concert is being held from 12.30-2pm and residents are invited to bring their own refreshments and enjoy the entertainment.

A spokesman at Gravesham council called on people from all the countries of the Commonwealth living in the area to join in the parade.

"As Commonwealth Nation representatives are always invited to Royal weddings we want to engage the community who come from all the Commonwealth Nations to take part in the parade, either wearing national costumes or carrying a national flag to make the day as colourful as possible."

Festivities will be taking place across Kent with more than 180 street parties approved by County Hall.

Fort Amherst in Chatham has been given permission by Buckingham Palace to fire a 21 gun salute on April 29.

The Prince William saluting battery which hasn't been used for over 100 years has been restored specifically for the event.

To join the Gravesham parade email info@kentec.org.uk.

Teachers threatening strike action as Coalition plans changes to pension scheme

By Steve Knight

steve.knight@archant.co.uk

TEACHERS may go on strike in Kent over controversial changes to their pension schemes.

Government ministers want teachers to pay 50 per cent more into their savings than they do at present, despite a change in how their pensions are calculated which could lead to a loss in value of more than £60,000 over the course of their careers.

The head of the Association of Teachers and Lecturers (ATL) union, Mary Bousted, has warned that staff could stage a one-day strike before the summer in protest at the planned reforms.

Her views were echoed by the Kent secretary of the National Union of Teachers, John Walder, who fears the proposals could put young people off entering the profession.

"They're being asked to pay more in, work for longer and get paid less at the end," he said. "They're being hit from all sides when the chances of them actually reaching retirement age are decreasing all the time as the pressures of the job increase.

"There's clearly a lot of self-interest in this but there's a considerable amount of worry on the effect these changes could have on the profession."

The NUT is in discussions with fellow unions the ATL and NASUWT to discuss a joint approach to opposing the reforms, which would result in a £2.8 billion saving for the Government.

Mr Walder was one of an estimated 500,000 people who attended the anti-cuts march in London last month.

He said: "It was gobsmacking to see the numbers that turned out, and there were teachers protesting against the pension changes everywhere.

"We are in the middle of negotiations with the Government and the march was all part and parcel of that, but with this particular Government I'm not holding out much hope of them doing anything other than carrying on regardless.

"I can't see any other alternative but to go on strike."

The ATL debated the pension changes at its annual conference last week, and some 15,000 members signed a petition that was handed to Chancellor George Osborne last Monday.

Dr Bousted said the union was likely to hold a ballot next month for industrial action to take place before the school summer holidays.

She added: "My view is that it almost certainly would involve a one-day strike, and that members would be asked to take discontinuous action.

"We do this most reluctantly. We are faced with a Government that has taken heavy-handed action on pensions, that's already reduced their value by 25 per cent, and is refusing to hold meaningful discussions with us."

Last month lecturers at the University of Kent went on strike over planned changes to their pension scheme.

The proposals included an end to final-salary pensions for new members, the introduction of a pension age of 65, and the linking of pension increases to the lower consumer prices index of inflation.

Man jailed for laser attack on Kent Police helicopter pilot

A MAN who blinded a police helicopter pilot with a laser pen, and could have caused him to crash into Maidstone town centre, has been locked up.

During the evening of June 24 last year the Kent Police helicopter was carrying out a search in Maidstone town centre when someone began shining a laser pen into the direction of the aircraft.

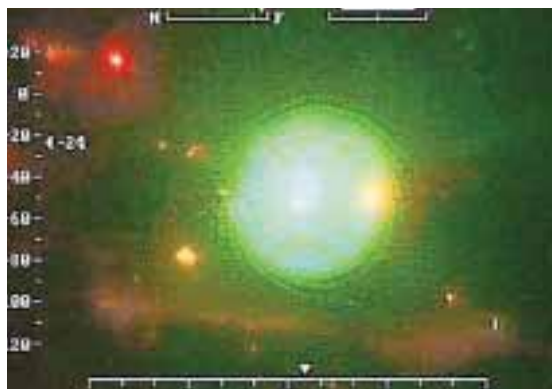

The laser lit up the flight deck, dazzling the pilot and forcing him to remove a hand from the flight controls in order to shield his eyes.

As he tried to manoeuvre the craft away from the light he was deliberately tracked.

The aircrew managed to guide police patrols to the direction of the light, where Jarome Tomlinson was arrested.

Tomlinson, 21, of Kewlands, Maidstone, was charged with recklessly or negligently acting in a manner likely to endanger an aircraft, contrary to the Civil Aviation Act 1982.

During the trial at Maidstone Crown Court last week, His Honour Judge Macdonald QC, passing sentence, said Tomlinson came from a good home with a good mother and had shown genuine remorse but that a suspended sentence wouldn't provide a strong enough deterrent to others.

Tomlinson will spend four months of his eight-month sentence in prison.

Supt Nicola Faulconbridge of Kent Police Contact and Control Centre said: "This was a very dangerous thing to do and the consequences could have been far more serious, but for the skills of the pilot.

"The crew were going about their daily job – protecting the public – when the light from the laser blinded the pilot.

"It is testament to his flying skills that he maintained control of the craft, but it was an act that not only endangered the crew but also those below in Maidstone town centre."

Cold War sub could be up the creek for a new home

By Chris Murphy
editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

THIS newspaper has used strategic Cold War-style tactics to manoeuvre interested parties to help a top secret Russian sub find a new home.

We first ducked under the radar and told you about the red war machine berthed in Strood two weeks ago. Now it seems the iron curtain stopping it finding a permanent home may have been blown out of the water, thanks to us.

In a typically clandestine operation, the owner of Faversham Creek tasked his sister with launching the ballistic idea of using the creek by floating it with this paper.

We in turn took the undercover messages to the owner of the sub, and he confirmed he could well be keen on navigating a new course.

Creek owner Michael White said: "I understand this could be turned in to a great attraction for tourists and children for educational trips.

"It would be brilliant to have a piece of history like this at the creek. I really think this could work."

Picture: SAM MURPHY

Owner John Sutton, 46, from Sidcup, is proud of his big boy's toy. He bought the decommissioned sub from the Russians with the intention of carrying out a refurbishment and launching it as a floating museum.

Currently berthed just off the old Strood pier, the 92m long hunter killer looks a sorry but spectacular sight, only she desperately needs a more permanent home so vital work on the hull can be carried out and her future assured.

Only a few decades ago, she was capable of launching a barrage of 22 torpedoes at Allied shipping in the Baltic, including two with nuclear warheads. The Foxtrot B-39, known as U-475, has just celebrated its 44th birthday having been put to sea by the Soviets in April, 1967.

With a crew of 77, she arrived in the UK from Latvia, in July, 1994, under the command of her captain of 23 years Vitalij Burda.

When we sent a signal to Mr Sutton he responded from his secret location, saying: "That is an interesting offer. I will have to speak with him and get all the details on access and depths."

Breaking cover, he said: "This is a large submarine and finding somewhere it fits is most of the battle. I have not been to Faversham so I don't know what the water is like, but I am grateful for the paper's help in this. Fingers crossed it all works out."

Mr Sutton said: "It would be great if this mission to Faversham is a success."

Police manhunt after attempted child abductions

By Jenna Pudelek

jenna.pudelek@archant.co.uk

PARENTS have been urged to be vigilant after the attempted abduction of three young girls.

Detectives have linked the three incidents, including one in Hawkhurst, and appealed for witnesses to come forward.

Police in Kent, who are also investigating an attempted abduction in Brabourne Lees, near Ashford, are working with detectives in Sussex after a similar incident in Rye on March 31.

Det Supt Rob Vinson said: "In all of the incidents young girls have been approached by a man who has used physical force to grab them.

"Fortunately, all of the girls managed to get away but we are extremely keen for members of the public to get in touch if they recognise any part of the descriptions of the man so we can bring him to justice."

All the girls described the man as white, having a beard or stubble and driving a dark blue car. Two of them said he had a 'squashed' nose.

Det Supt Vinson said: "Someone out there knows who this man is and I would appeal to them to come forward."

The first attempted abduction in Kent was on April 3, at about 8.30pm when a young teenage girl was walking along The Moor, Hawkhurst. She heard a car pull up behind her, and then a man grabbed from behind, she struggled and the man let her go.

On April 6, at about 8.30pm, a young girl was cycling along Lees Road in Brabourne Lees when she saw a car stop ahead and a man get out. As she passed the man he grabbed her lower right arm but she pulled away and he let go.

She described the man as white, in his 20s, smelling of cigarettes and scruffy in appearance.

Contact police on 01622 654867 or Kent CrimeStoppers on 0800 555 111.

■ On Thursday a man from Cranbrook was arrested in connection with the incident in Hawkhurst. He was later released without charge, and police said he was not the man they were looking for.

Win a place on Manchester United Soccer Schools' Development Course

MANCHESTER United Soccer Schools is coming to Maidstone this year, and to celebrate, Archant KOS Media is giving away one action-packed two-day Player Development Course (PDC), worth £69.95.

The course, which will be held in Maidstone on August 13-14, 2011, is open to boys and girls aged between six to 16-years-old and offers the chance for participants to 'Learn to Play the United Way'.

Manchester United Soccer Schools offer aspiring players of all abilities the chance to develop fundamental football skills.

Equally as important, children also learn vital 'life lessons' relating to attitude, behaviour, communication, discipline, enthusiasm, fair play and the benefits of maintaining a healthy lifestyle, which will help them both on and off the pitch.

The two-day Player Development Course includes expert training from UEFA qualified coaches, use of state-of-the-art training equipment and an individual player diary to help monitor progress and ongoing development.

One player from the Maidstone course will also be selected to attend Champions Day, a celebration

GREAT WALL: Art at the Royal Sands site and (far right) how the development will look when construction is finished

ART

Brush strokes turn construction site safety fence into work of art

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

FORGET China – the Great Wall of Ramsgate is set to become the latest Wonder of the County.

As Cardy Construction continues its work changing the face of the seafront with its Royal Sands development, more than 80 artists from across Kent have created unique pieces to decorate the site's hoardings.

Cardy bosses and residents wanted something more stimulating to look at than bare wooden safety walls around the development.

So volunteers, from children to a 97-year-old, gathered together to cover the 1,000 feet of wooden panels with 90 paintings.

Following on from the amazingly successful opening last weekend of the Turner Contemporary in nearby Margate, it appears Thanet has gone art mad.

The wall will be officially unveiled on Saturday, April 23, at 2.30pm, and some of the artists will be on hand to discuss their work with visitors to the opening, which will be carried out by renowned Kent artist Charles Newington.

Cardy's new development is near Ramsgate's Main Sands on the site of the former Pleasureama funfair. Individuals and local businesses, plus donations of all sizes, helped pay for the Great Wall and it is stressed by the organisers that no public money was used.

Gerry O'Donnell, chairman of the Great Wall project said: "No-one wants to see these bare wooden panels, but I understand they are needed. So we got together with Cardy and did what we could to change their visual appeal.

"Now this is a beautiful site for people to take photographs. It should be another tourist attraction while the building work carries on.

"That should be completed in about two years, so there is plenty of time to see our Great Wall of Ramsgate."

The development is seen as a major step forward in the regeneration of Ramsgate seafront, and has created 250 local jobs.

The landmark building by Canterbury-based Cardy Construction Limited, the company behind the development, includes luxury apartments and a hotel with state-of-the-art facilities.

OPINION

What hope is there for Easter?

Bishop Trevor Willmott, the Bishop of Dover, offers a seasonal message of hope for world facing revolution, natural disasters and economic hardship

SINCE January, it feels like our world has been 'turned upside down'. The earthquake in New Zealand and the earthquake and tsunami in Japan have horrified us. The crisis at Fukushima nuclear plant in Japan fills us with fear.

We continue to worry about the unrest in the Middle East and North Africa. While there appears to be a favourable resolution in Egypt, following the protests about human rights which led to the ousting of President Mubarak, promises of political reforms in Syria, Bahrain, Oman, Morocco and Tunisia are yet to be fulfilled.

With western troops still in Afghanistan and Iraq, Britain and other Nato countries have now been drawn into yet another military campaign, this time in the conflict stricken country of Libya.

Closer to home, we are being forced to rethink the way our own society operates. As the country comes to terms with its debt problem, the Government and local authorities are being forced to slash their spending. We are starting to see the effects of these cuts – support services are being withdrawn, jobs are being lost and charities are closing. We all feel more hard-up.

I have been asked where God is in all of this pain, suffering and uncertainty. I have been asked why God made a world where people lose their jobs, where people treat others badly, where accidents happen and where natural disasters occur.

God could have created a world where humans behaved like automatons and never had to make decisions, where self will was non-existent. He could have kept us all safe from harm and allowed us to all die quietly after risk-free uneventful lives.

But God created a world where something far more valuable than safety and long life could exist. He created a world in which love, joy and hope can grow. He created a world in which humans are free to show love, help one another, work with one another, forgive one another, be generous, and respond to suffering together.

For it is amidst pain, risk, danger and tragedy that God's love can emerge in us. When human rights are persistently overlooked and injustice is overpowering, people join together in hope to bring about positive changes. When people are injured, others will risk their own lives to save them.

When thousands were made homeless by the tsunami, thousands provided space in their own homes, food, and money to help others. None of these tragedies are good, but the most special qualities of human life emerge in new ways.

God knows all about suffering. God came to Earth as Jesus Christ, where he loved and suffered and died a horrible death as the cost of confronting human injustice and sin. By dying

At Easter we are reminded that death is not the end, it is a new beginning on the cross and rising again three days later, God reveals in Jesus his promise to us all – that love will never die.

At Easter we are reminded death is not the end, it is a new beginning. The uncertainty of 2011, be it unemployment, poverty, the repression of human rights, the violence of revolutions, or the death from natural disasters – all this suffering will never be justified, but new hope can be found in a God whose love is stronger than death.

By taking up our cause, by dying like a criminal on a cross, God literally turned our world 'upside down' and gave us a new way to give our lives in serving others: "There will be no more death or mourning or crying or pain, for the old order of things has passed away." The world has been transformed and together, in community, we continue this work.

With every blessing this Easter, Bishop Trevor.

KOS COMMENT

Is there no respect left for our churches?

WHETHER a regular church-goer or someone who only ventures into a religious building during times of birth, marriage or death, most people have respect for spiritual places and their contents.

So for heartless thieves to steal what they deemed scrap metal, which was in fact a precious memorial for brave soldiers who died in World War Two, seems especially shocking.

Despite the financial hardships of this country and the desperation felt by some, there are lines that must never be crossed.

This callous crime makes you question whether anything is sacred anymore.

Have a happy Easter in the April heatwave

US Brits are used to Bank Holidays filled with rain and the hope the sun might just come out long enough for the annual Easter egg hunt. So what a treat that the sun's out, perhaps even long enough to ensure next week's Royal Wedding is without a drop of rain.

Happy Easter from everyone at Archant KOS Media and enjoy the heatwave and your chocolate eggs.

Manston key to new jobs

WITH reference to your editorial in last week's KoS, you state, "It would be foolish to assume (Turner Contemporary at Margate) is the only answer to the region's woes". That of course is undeniable.

The art gallery by its nature is bound to be of only limited appeal. Every economist knows an effective means is at hand to solve Thanet's problems – to choose Manston as the Third London Airport. Why then, oh why is Boris Johnson so dismissive of it?

It is as near as damn it in the mouth of the Thames, only a few miles away from where Boris wants the third airport. Manston has been an established aerodrome since 1918 so the objection to it by nearby residents would be negligible. It has one of the longest runways in the country, and ample capacity for more of a similar size. With the nearby Thanet Way as an extension of the M2, Manston is easily accessible to and from London.

Only a minimum sum would be needed to be spent on infrastructure access. As the Third London Airport it would easily compensate for the loss of jobs at Pflizers, and create employment in one of the most deprived areas in the country.

East Kent MPs should be trying harder to make Boris see sense, who instead wants to spend billions in building a new airport on a site only a few miles away, and cause distress by destroying or threatening to destroy homes on the Hoo peninsula in the process. I cannot see the Mayor's reasoning when a solution where to site London's Third Airport is already on his doorstep.

Not allowed any questions

I AM sorry Jenny Whittle was angered by my suggestion that KCC was not being open and transparent about dealing with the problem of the highly critical report on Safeguarding of Children (KoS, April 17). I have no doubt she is being thorough in her efforts to sort the problems out.

However the fact is her leader Cllr Carter refused to allow the official report into how KCC proposes to tackle the backlog of neglect to be questioned in public at the Cabinet Scrutiny Committee before the local elections.

The Conservative members who dared to suggest KCC cannot set its house in order within the promised timescale have been hauled over the coals at County Hall and sent off with their tails between their legs. They have been silenced by being invited to join a small implementation group which meets in private only.

While the report is to be debated in the council chamber, this does not replace the ability of members to closely question and get answers from both officers and members in public over typically a couple of hours' meeting.

Since Peter Gilroy, previous highest paid chief executive in the land, has claimed he warned of the problems, and this is denied by Cllr Carter, there is some serious questioning to be done over how the situation arose in a council flaunting its 'excellent' rating at every opportunity. When cabinet scrutiny is finally allowed to question the report I intend to call Mr Gilroy as a witness. Cllr Carter's refusal to submit to questioning in advance of the local elections is an abuse of power, and by no stretch of the imagination can it be described as being open and transparent.

PCSOs are not the answer

RE: KoS April 17. All very commendable on PCSOs, however valuable the service they all provide and contribute, they are no substitute for real policemen/women with statutory power.

They do have a difficult job, there are just not too many of them, while (similar to management in our NHS) the 'brass' pocket the lion's share of the budget available and massive savings and cuts have to be made. All their efforts are jeopardized by the ineffectual judiciary and the fact we no longer have 'punishment to fit the crime'.

The victim is always to blame, perpetrators are treated better than VIPs and are encouraged to sue for damages at taxpayers' expense, because the victim was in the wrong place at the wrong time and may have infringed their 'human rights'. What of the ordinary law abiding citizens' human rights? Surely it is time for a radical approach, to bring back some deterrents, and make criminals consider the consequences of their actions.

Our police officers and PCSOs would then receive the rewards and honours they deserve, (and yes, the proceeds of crime should be confiscated and used for reparations and compensation).

Peter Lubi, Margate

AV would end wasted votes

THOSE who don't support the alternative voting system, don't support the voters' right to be fairly represented in Parliament. Under the current system, it is not uncommon for the winner of the seat to have no support from the majority of his/her constituents. And the scare mongering by some councillors and politicians about how it could lead to extremist parties getting an MP, just goes to show they only want a system that can elect who they think is suitable, and not the electorate. I personally would not like to see the BNP's influence grow in Parliament, but it is a false democracy that can choose which people get the right to representation.

And to suppose this new system will be too complicated for us voters, is quite frankly insulting. I believe many supporters of minority parties feel their vote is currently wasted and are therefore less likely to bother voting at all, so AV should get more voters to the polling stations. Also the need to vote tactically would be removed.

Be funny and we'll laugh

RE: KoS April 17. Having seen Alan Carr support the hilarious Bob Downe a few years ago at the Hazlitt theatre in Maidstone and dying on his feet, perhaps these so-called new breed of comedian just are not that funny in the first place. If something isn't funny why should anybody laugh?

Unlike the great Bob Downe from Oz who had appeared in Kent to sold out houses and standing ovations several times, with side splitting results.

Thanks, you're an inspiration

I would like to thank the record number of people who attended the annual Deal Town Meeting last Thursday in the town hall. Three speakers delivered presentations on Deal policing issues, an update on the Deal flood and transport study and the work of the Deal Community First Responders.

The floor was opened after representatives from 30 organisations took the opportunity to tell everyone about the work they do and how others could get involved. The evening demonstrated the passion and commitment of so many individuals and those taking part were inspirational and dedicated in equal measures.

Court ruling to have impact on insurance

Q I have just passed my driving test but have not yet got my own car. My mother has added me to her insurance, so I can drive her car, but she was advised to sort out my own insurance as quickly as possible because new laws will increase women's premiums. Is this true? KL

A Yes, this is true – probably! Everything depends on a European Court decision that is expected next week, on Friday. A consumer group in Belgium wants the court to rule that it is illegal to charge men and women different insurance premiums, and it looks as though the judge will agree. If he does, the results will be enormous and the ripples will spread far wider than just motoring policies. Young women drivers have far fewer accidents than young men, so pay less for their insurance. The AA says women's premiums can be as much as 50pc cheaper, and could increase substantially immediately the judgment is enforced. There is no way of knowing whether the court's decision will apply at once or at a date to be set in the future, but you could be looking at paying an extra £1,000 a year. At the other end of the age scale, people approaching retirement may be badly hit. Men die younger than women, so a man with a private pension plan gets more than a woman of the same age, because her pension will typically last four or five years longer. If this is outlawed, a man retiring next month could see his pension crash by about 10pc. I suppose there is always a chance that Parliament will stand up to the European Court. MPs recently voted down European plans to give prisoners the vote, so perhaps they will also come to the rescue of young women drivers and men approaching retirement.

Q Tesco Bank is offering 5.2pc interest. Is this the same as the supermarket company, or is it a different firm? Is the account safe? PD

A Tesco Bank really is part of the huge supermarket group. But its highest interest rate on any savings account is 3.75pc. What you have heard about is a 'corporate bond', or IOU. You lend Tesco Bank £2,000 upwards, and the bank will pay annual interest of 5.2pc until 2018, when your bond will be repaid in full. Meanwhile, those bonds are traded on the stock market, with the price rising or falling each day. It is very unlikely that anything will go wrong with a company so big, but if disaster did strike, your bond would not be protected by the official compensation scheme that rescues savers, because it is a stock market investment and not a bank account. Only you can decide whether you can lock your money away, possibly for as long as seven years.

TONY HETHERINGTON MONEY CLINIC

Q Our bank statement showed a direct debit payment to the power company Eon, but we do not use Eon. I told the bank, and the money was returned to our account immediately, but how did Eon get our details in the first place? LH

A Direct debit rules say your bank must replace the money as soon as you say that a payment was not authorised, so top marks to your bank for doing just that. My guess is that Eon's bank meant to take a payment from someone else's account and someone typed in your account details by mistake. Just one incorrect figure could have meant that you paid someone else's gas or electric bill. This is one more reason why we all need to check our bank statements.

Q I have been told to expect a £100 fine because I missed the January 31 deadline for filing my tax return online. Is there any appeal against this? CR

A You have told me that when you went to the Revenue website to file your tax return, you were asked to register. You were then advised you would be sent confirmation details, allowing you to file online, but those details arrived after the deadline because they were sent by post for security reasons. There is an appeal procedure, but according to the taxman it is meant for people who were ill, or whose vital documents had been lost in a flood or fire. As you had nine months to file your return, it is unlikely an appeal would succeed.

Q My grandfather had shares in Abbey National, that became shares in Santander when it took over. He died recently, and my two brothers and I are supposed to divide the small holding of shares, so none of us will end up with much. Could we sign them over to charity instead? NR

A If you have a favourite charity, you could certainly hand over the shares. Or you could contact Sharegift (020 7930 3737), which is a charity that turns unwanted shares into cash for good causes, and deals with the necessary paperwork.

Tax cheats face increased scrutiny

LETTERS are about to land on the doormats of 900 tax cheats warning them that they under an increased level of scrutiny from the authorities.

Under a programme called Managing Deliberate Defaulters (MDD), known evaders – both individuals and businesses – will be closely monitored by HM Revenue & Customs.

The scrutiny is designed to prevent tax cheats from going back to their old ways once they have been punished for their past misdemeanours.

"Tax cheat check-ups will involve continued and close scrutiny – it is a real deterrent," said Steve Hickman, of HM Revenue and Customs.

"If you are thinking about breaking the rules, remember that you could end up with HMRC on your back for five years."

The level and term of monitoring will depend on the seriousness of the previous offence, but it is thought that anyone who is in the programme will be monitored for at least two years.

HMRC said that as well as checking that returns are filed on time and all tax that is due is paid correctly, there will be regular reviews of people's tax affairs to check that any errors or failings have been put right.

"We have worked closely with the accountant community to develop this programme and their help has been invaluable in getting the detail right," said Mr Hickman.

Tax evaders who fail to keep their affairs in order are being warned they will face increasingly intrusive interventions from the authorities, and they could be subject to further criminal proceedings. Safeguards are also being put in place to ensure that deliberate defaulters do not escape scrutiny by starting new businesses under different names or identities.

EXPENSIVE BUSINESS: This young child could cost his parents more than £200,000 by the time he is 21.

Children still proving pricey

THE cost of raising a child has risen by 50pc over the past eight years, and has now smashed through the £200,000 barrier.

Even over the past year, with the official rate of inflation going way over the Bank of England's 2pc target, the cost of bringing up children has risen quicker than costs elsewhere, with a 4.5pc increase over the past 12 months.

"Parents are all too aware that having a child comes with a hefty bill when you factor in things like childcare, schooling and holidays over a 21-year stretch," said Mark Jones, head of protection at LV=, which carried out a study into the cost of having children.

"Childcare and education must feel like another mortgage payment for some parents as this is still the biggest outlay and shows no signs of slowing down, particularly when many universities are set to increase tuition fees up to £9,000 a year from 2012."

By Adam Aiken
MyMoney24 editor

The cost of raising children has been presented by LV= on an average basis, and there are likely to be huge variations between parents of different means and in different situations.

But the figures – once they have been aggregated over a 21-year period – still bring home the impact of how much it can cost to bring up a child.

According to the research, parents typically spend £67,000 on childcare and babysitting; £55,000 on education; £18,000 on food; £15,000 on clothing; £14,000 on holidays; and £10,000 on hobbies and toys.

Even pocket money apparently costs an average of more than £4,500 for each child.

Perhaps unsurprisingly, children are most expensive between the ages of 18 and 21, when they typically cost parents £14,365 a year. And with tuition fees set to see a huge increase, education is expected to form the biggest single area of expenditure for parents from next year.

More than three quarters of those who took part in the Cost of a Child Report said the economic climate had hit them hard, with 78pc having made cutbacks or economised over the past year because of financial pressures.

Holidays and short breaks have fallen victim, and there has also been a reduction in the purchase of new clothes by nearly half the parents who were surveyed.

Meanwhile, a majority of parents said they would be affected by the changes to child benefit.

Nearly a third of parents said they expected to have to cut back their spending as a direct result of losing the benefit, which can be worth up to £66 a month for a family's eldest child.

Take some action to avoid driving up motoring costs

Motoring is getting even more expensive, leading many drivers to take evasive action. ADAM AIKEN reports

A GROWING number of motorists are expected to change their driving habits thanks to the seemingly ever-increasing cost of running a car.

Insurance premiums and fuel have both soared in recent months, with two thirds of all drivers saying that the huge costs have taken their toll.

The price of insuring a vehicle rose by more than 30pc last year, or by an average of 44p a day, according to re-search by Moneysupermarket.com, and the cost of filling a tank with petrol or diesel has been the subject of much comment in recent months.

Environmentalists will see some good coming out of all this, with the Moneysupermarket research suggesting that 8pc of motorists are looking to ditch their cars and make use of public transport instead.

But for those people who intend to keep using their vehicles, a few tips on bringing down the cost of motoring are in order.

"With escalating fuel prices hitting motorists hard in the pocket, I'm not surprised most are looking for ways to drive down the cost of getting behind the wheel – especially when the cost of insurance cover is on the rise, too," said Peter Harrison, of Money-supermarket.

■ INSURANCE

Mr Harrison said: "Our analysis shows car insurance prices increased by 31pc in 2010. With prices on the up, it is more important than ever that drivers ensure they are shopping around for the best deals on insurance. Those who do will reap rewards and make their hard-earned cash go further.

"When newly insuring a car, providers may lure drivers in with competitive deals or special discounts in the first year which are not ordinarily available to existing policyholders. Rest assured that if you don't shop around in the second year, certain insurers will not hesitate to increase your renewal price – hardly the thanks deserved for being a loyal customer."

Moneysupermarket reckons that more than six million drivers a year automatically renew their policies. But by sticking with their existing insurers, motorists are wasting an average of £270 each by paying over the odds.

ON THE HIGHWAY TO HELL: Motorists are facing both rising costs and increasing levels of traffic on British roads

"Insurers count on customer apathy to reap the profits, so it is alarming that so many motorists are prepared to waste their hard-earned cash by not looking for better deals.

"Even if you think your quote can't be beaten, it takes only a few minutes to make sure you really do have the best value policy to suit your needs."

However, Ian Crowder, of AA Insurance, said it was important for people using price-comparison websites to compare like with like.

"You need to make sure you know what you're buying," he said.

"Quite often when you see a lower quote on a price-comparison site, it's because there is a higher excess or because things such as legal assistance on foreign cover is not included. Those things become bolt-on goodies instead, and once you have added them to the cost of your new quote, you can find you are back where you are started."

Something else that motorists – especially young drivers – can do to help get their premiums lower is avoid con-victions

"It might sound obvious, but keep you nose clean and your premiums are likely to come down," said Mr Crowder.

"It might be uncool to drive within the speed limit, but if you avoid any claims or speeding convictions you might find your premium falls by as much as a third the first time you come to renew your insurance."

Meanwhile, if you change jobs or substantially cut your annual mileage, let your insurer know. The way you use your car can have a significant impact on what you pay.

■ FUEL EFFICIENCY

As well as the 8pc of drivers in the Moneysupermarket study who said they would be looking to switch to public transport because of rising motoring costs, nearly half of those asked said they would look to get more fuel-efficient cars when they replaced their current vehicles.

As well as being more economical with fuel, other benefits include a cut in road tax and savings on the congestion charge when driving in central London. The AA's Mr Crowder also said he had recently come across a district council that allowed free parking for environmentally-friendly cars.

For the majority of drivers, though, it's going to be a case of taking measures to keep their existing fuel costs down.

Mr Crowder that taking a few simple steps, such as not carrying unnecessary loads around and removing unused roof-racks, would help cut the use of fuel.

He added: "Make sure your tyres are inflated correctly. If they are too soft, they will suck up fuel.

"The same thing will happen if your tracking is out. If you ever go over a large pothole or bump on to a kerb, have your tracking checked as soon as you can."

Each of these tips might save only a few pence, but the extra costs can soon add up if you don't take care.

PICK OF THE WEEK

In association with the experts at Moneyfacts.co.uk, we highlight some of the best new products launched this week.

Savings: Barclays

Barclays has launched its latest five-year-fixed rate bond. The minimum investment is £500, which pays an annual rate of 4.25pc, or 4.17pc for monthly interest. Savers with deposits of £50,000 or above will receive a rate of 4.75pc, or 4.65pc for monthly interest. Further additions are not allowed and, as with many fixed-rate deals, no earlier access is permitted. Investors must be aged 18 and over and can operate this account in branch only.

Why is it good? This is amongst the market-leading long-term bonds, as long as investors have £50,000 or more to invest. Savers must ensure they are committed to locking funds away for the duration of the term.

Savings: Nationwide

The popular Mysave Online Plus account has been relaunched, paying a monthly rate of 2.91pc, including a 1.41pc bonus for 12 months. Investments range between £1,000 and £3m. Investors can make one penalty-free withdrawal a year. If more than one is made within a 12-month period, the rate will reduce to 0.1pc for the month in which it was made. All withdrawals must be made via a nominated account. Savers must be 16 and over for this online-only account.

Why is it good? This latest deal from Nationwide heads straight to the top of the no-notice internet market with its competitive rate, including a bonus for 12 months. Whilst this is very appealing, savers must remember that only one-penalty free withdrawal is allowed a year, otherwise there is a penalty.

Mortgages: Co-operative Bank

The Co-op has reviewed its fixed-rate mortgage range. The five-year rate of 6.09pc has been reduced to 5.89pc until May 31, 2016. The maximum loan-to-value is 90pc and a fee of £999 is payable. The deal also offers a host of flexible features such as the options to make overpayments and underpayments and to take payment holidays.

Why is it good? A rate reduction of 0.2pc means this five-year deal features as one of the lower rates in the market. The high LTV will please borrowers with limited deposits, while a fee of £999 plus many features help to heighten its appeal.

Mortgages: Yorkshire Building Society

The Yorkshire has increased selected rates across its fixed range. But despite a rate increase of 0.4pc, the two-year deal at 3.79pc still offers borrowers a good overall product with a maximum LTV of 75pc and a fee of £495. A plethora of incentives are also offered. First and second-time buyers can enjoy £250 rebates, remortgagers will receive free legal fees and all borrowers enjoy free valuations. Overpayments of up to 10pc of the outstanding balance can be made.

Why is it good? The two-year product of 3.79pc remains competitive and stands out, mainly due to the low fee of £495 and the incentives.

WHEN businesses make the decision to move their offices, new floor plans are often the last piece of the process. Kent Office Solutions is urging firms to consult them for a detailed pre-relocation survey, which could save them both space and money. Ed says Pfizer hole will not be plugged by an Enterprise Zone

simon.robinson@archant.co.uk

LABOUR leader Ed Miliband has criticised the Government's Enterprise Zone schemes during a visit to Kent.

Mr Miliband said the new start-up zones, brought in to replace his party's regional development agencies (RDAs), would not be able to deliver the growth predicted by Prime Minister David Cameron.

Speaking at Deal's Citizens Advice Bureau on Monday, the Leader of the Opposition said he was disappointed that RDAs such as the South East England Development Agency (SEEDA) had been scrapped, saying Enterprise Zones (EZs) would not propel the country out of recession.

"I'm all for anything that will help an area but I'm sceptical that the scale of intervention needed will be met by Enterprise Zones," he said.

Mr Miliband also spoke about the effect Pfizer's closure of its huge research and development site in Sandwich would have on the county.

He said: "The Pfizer decision was very disappointing - what we have to learn from the financial crisis is the need to have a broad industrial basis. There needs to be a focus on every area of manufacturing in Britain."

Kent business leaders agreed that the Government's EZs would need additional support if they were to succeed.

Jo James, chief executive of the Kent Invicta Chamber of Commerce, said: "I agree with Mr Miliband's comments. There does need to be a focus on increasing our manufacturing capabilities, particularly if the Government push is on getting more UK exports, then we need to increase our manufacturing outputs.

FOCUS: Ed Miliband said Britain must have a broad industrial base during a visit to Deal CAB on Monday

"Regarding an EZ for east Kent, it was felt by all that this would be one part of a portfolio of support for the area and we have to look at additional opportunities that are out there to support the local economy and the EZ is only part of the mix. There could be opportunities within the second round of the Regional Growth Fund as well as potential European funding."

Thanet and East Kent Chamber of Commerce chief executive David Foley hit out at Labour's RDAs and called for local company owners to be given the powers to govern themselves.

"Any public body that takes hard-earned cash from businesses on the promise that it can spend it better than the businesses themselves has to make quite sure that it does so," he said.

"Despite the laudable efforts and intentions of its senior management, SEEDA failed to turn around deprived local economies in east Kent - the bomb site on Dover seafront, the 10-year old sign outside Buckland Mill stating "Development Coming Soon", the unemployment figures in Cliftonville at six times the South East average and Margate's dubious honour of having the highest percentage of empty shops in England are not indicators of economic regeneration.

"The sectors of tourism, manufacturing and research offer genuine beacons of hope for local businesses that would complement neatly the opening of the Turner Contemporary. In the medium term, improved transport links would save the Government money and contribute significantly to the regeneration of our area.

"Carefully-targeted public investment in key parts of our local economy, an EZ in Thanet and selected wards in the Dover district and better transport links are of course welcome. But, as a general rule, company owners here prefer to make their own decisions on where to spend the money they earn, rather than rely on the goodwill and indulgence of remote government officials in London or in Maidstone."

VINEYARD

Queen's award for Xcalibre invention

HEIGHT safety firm Checkmate has been awarded the Queen's Award for innovation.

The Sheppey company received the honour in recognition of its Xcalibre Fall Arrest Block, which prevents the most common cause of death in the workplace - falling from height.

The latest Health and Safety Executive figures show that 35 workers died and 11,700 were injured following falls in the workplace in 2008/09.

Checkmate lifting and safety managing director Oliver Auston said: "We passionately believe that innovation is a key to business success, and Xcalibre embodies that, allowing us to sell across the UK and the world against cheaper, foreign-made alternatives. Quite simply, it's the best at saving lives and preventing injury."

Checkmate, which employs almost 100 workers, won two other Queen's Awards in 2004 and 2008. Clients include the Palace of Westminster, Ministry of Defence and the Maritime and Coastguard Agency.

VINE WINE: Argentinian Malbec grapes

ACCOLADE

Anglo-Argentine grape agreement

CHAPEL Down has teamed up with a South American counterpart to create an English-made Argentinian wine.

The Kent wine-producer has joined forces with the Gaucho Restaurants vineyard in Mendoza to supply the Malbec grapes that will be used to create the first Anglo-Argentine wine.

Chapel Down chief executive Frazer Thompson said: "We are delighted to have been given the chance to share our spirit of innovation with great winemakers in Argentina. We believe it's an exciting project for all parties involved, and another recognition of the quality of England's winemaking."

More than 2,100 kilos of old vine Malbec grapes have been transported 7,100 miles from Argentina to the Chapel Down winery in Tenterden.

Chapel Down will crush and press the grapes to produce up to 2,000 bottles of this limited edition wine.

The wine will then be ready to be released next year, when it will be available at Chapel Down, in Gaucho Restaurants and at selected retailers.

Region posts rise in overseas trade

EXPORTS from firms across the South East exceeded £11 billion in the fourth quarter last year - up 2.3 per cent on the same period in 2009.

HM Revenue and Customs data shows the region's growth for visible goods - excluding services and intangibles such as financial investments - was lower than the national average rise of 2.85 per cent.

NatWest and RBS, which analysed the figures, have joined forces with the British Chambers of Commerce (BCC) to further encourage UK exports.

The Finding New International Markets category has been added to the BCC awards, sponsored by the banks.

RBS' global strategic partnerships director David Houghton said: "We're committed to driving UK business success on the international stage and have sponsored this new award to recognise those businesses which have shown this pioneering spirit."

BREWERY

Super Dry is super lager

ASAHI Super Dry has been voted the best keg lager in the world by a panel of experts at the Brewing Industry International Awards.

The Japanese lager, brewed under licence by Shepherd Neame in Faversham, won the title after a double-blind tasting by more than 30 worldwide brewers.

Head brewer David Holmes said: "We are proud that Asahi Super Dry brewed at Faversham has been named the best of the best. This is a huge accolade for all our brewers and our partners in Japan, particularly as it has been chosen by a panel of our peers in the brewing industry."

Shepherd Neame also picked up two silver medals at the awards: Chinese beer Sun Lik, also brewed under licence, picked up silver in the same group and Whitstable Bay Organic Ale won a silver award in the Small Pack Ale Category.

This year's event attracted almost 800 entries.

PRIVATE HIRE

Day-trippers are UK's best

CAROL Peters Coach Travel has been named as the UK's best operator of the year.

The Ramsgate-based firm took first prize in the Coach Awards' small fleets category, which saw group organisers nominate their favourite operators.

A UK Coach Awards spokesman said Carol Peters were deserving winners.

A spokesman said: "The company has an enthusiastic following and the numerous club/society nominations we received all mentioned good service, helpful drivers and flexibility; one sums it up as 'friendly, accommodating and value for money'."

"The company has built a reputation as a quality operator in its locality, resulting in regular repeat business and hence is already fully booked for much of this year."

Carol Peters Coach Travel was established 13 years ago.

ENERGY

Help propel wind farm

ECO-MINDED businesses are being invited to attend a wind farm extension event.

Energy company Vattenfall is looking to meet Kent companies keen to help build a further 17 turbines to the existing 30 turbine Kentish Flats Wind Farm.

Vattenfall's extension proposal project manager Göran Loman said: "We would like to encourage local businesses to come along and find out about our proposals to extend the Kentish Flats Offshore Wind Farm."

"Although we are not yet ready to make any commitments at this early stage we do think it's important to give companies in the area an edge by providing information and getting them to think about how they could help to build the extension and win some business."

The informal event will take place at the University of Kent's Canterbury campus from 10am to 1pm on Friday, May 6.

No stone left unturned on career path to making law firm a success

The BIG Interview

When solicitor Nigel Burnett took up his first post at his Tunbridge Wells practice, the office did not even have electric typewriters. On the firm's 30th anniversary he told Business Week editor Simon Robinson how working 80-hour weeks in his first few years helped secured its future, paving the way for expansion throughout the past three decades.

THERE is no sure-fire way to guarantee success in business. Those fortunate to be blessed with a solid skill set – including a level of intelligence, confidence and God-given nous – have a head start on the rest of the pack but this alone is not enough to secure a prosperous working life.

An element of luck can have a large say on how an entrepreneurial start-up career pans out and there are many more other cosmic intangibles that all come in to play.

In a nutshell, what worked for one high-achieving Man of Industry may not work for the next. However, one key element all successful businessmen need to share is the ability and determination to graft.

This roll-your-sleeves-up attitude helped pave the way for Nigel Burnett to carve out a 30-year-and-counting career at the CooperBurnett law firm, based in Tunbridge Wells.

At the beginning of the 1980s, the then newly-qualified, keen solicitor moved to the affluent west Kent town. He joined a two-solicitor firm in April 1981 and was made equity partner five weeks later.

Reflecting on his attitude at the time, Nigel said: "I knew I could and would work hard and believed simplistically that if I kept my nose clean it would all work out."

"That was a little naïve of course but I was 26; very young, too young, and at the time I didn't know what I didn't know, but within two or three months at the practice I was managing the firm as it became fairly clear that no-one else was going to do so – it was in part a matter of necessity, and in part a mutual progression of my career."

This role saw the young solicitor bring the firm's office equipment up to date, adding further financial pressure to a practice already facing strong competition from its rivals.

Nigel said: "The first 18 to 24 months were difficult partly because of the economic climate of the time but also because the firm we took over was incredibly old fashioned."

"We didn't have electric typewriters or a telephone system that could transfer calls. That was all money going out before it was coming in, so things were hard."

The tide turned thanks to the acquisition of a large amount of work from London, combined with a similar amount of hours spent at the desk.

"We started off doing property and litigation but wound down litigation and wound up property quite quickly because that was where the business market was."

"We then started getting 50 files per month from London, which buoyed us up and got us into a position where we could expand."

"By 1983 I was working well over 80 hours per week and that carried on for most of the decade. I had very little time off but that was what was necessary to get the firm going. And it got going."

Nigel and his colleagues' initial sacrifices secured the practice's corner of the market and paved the way for further expansion during the past two decades.

CooperBurnett, which celebrates its 30th anniversary this week, has grown to a total complement of 55 people with a very low turnover of staff, many having been with the firm for more than 15 years.

Nigel said the firm's continuing success was largely thanks to their unique selling point. "Everything we do is bespoke and it is this USP that protects us. We pride ourselves on our service, approachability and we strive for excellence, all of which were very specific aims."

"If you can concentrate on those points, servicing being first, followed by approachability and excellence second equally, you can extrapolate down from that into everything you do.

"I'm very proud of what the firm has achieved, and that's greatly due to the staff we have."

CooperBurnett's position at the top end of the market has allowed the firm to prosper in a highly competitive market.

Nigel said: "There is a sector in the market that is very competitive on cost and not on service. We are not in that sector.

"Luckily we are in a part of the country where people value the service and want it and are prepared to pay properly for it. That does not mean to say we're much more expensive than others. It means we try to value what we do and charge people fairly for it. There is a sector of the community who will choose their solicitor on cost alone and go with the firm that charges the least. In Tunbridge Wells people are more interested in getting the job done right and on time."

The 56-year-old speaks with confidence and clarity, occasionally pausing to fully consider my questions before responding, ensuring he delivers his points precisely and succinctly.

While formal, Nigel also embodies the approachable and easy-going quality he expects of all his staff. He also has a relatively new age outlook on the inner-workings of office hierarchy.

"The senior partner who articulated me was a pretty tough man to work for and wasn't much liked. I said back then if I ever ran a firm I would do things differently.

"I tell all new solicitors coming to work here that if your secretary is rushed off her feet then you should make her a cup of coffee, not the other way around.

"It also doesn't hurt to say please or thank you or hold a door open. These elementary courtesies all count and make for a happy workplace."

Best of Kent's produce is up for grabs at fresh food and veg farm shop

By Simon Robinson

simon.robinson@archant.co.uk

FRESH locally-sourced produce has gone on sale at Kent Life's new farm shop.

Foodari at Kent Life provides high quality Kent food to visitors while also catering for restaurants, businesses and hotels across London and the South East.

Items currently on the Maidstone shop's shelves include dairy products, fresh meats and fish, eggs, preserves, oils, nuts and snacks, seasonal fruit and vegetables, fresh bread and baked products, frozen curries, juices and crisps, as well as items produced by the Foodari Kitchen including quiches, soups, cakes, pies and sausage rolls.

Foodari managing director Jonathan Parker said: "We are very excited to be working with Kent Life to launch our first increasingly concerned about food miles and where their produce comes from, Foodari will bring the very best that Kent has to offer to the new farm shop, offering a wide selection of super fresh quality foods that have been grown, picked and produced across the county.

"We will also help to encourage seasonal eating and offer plenty of ideas for recipes at the same time."

Kent Life general manager Emily Hiron added: "The addition of the farm shop fits perfectly with phase two of the developments at Kent Life this year, which aims to celebrate Kent's history and traditions with the addition of costumed characters, new tea rooms and improved interpretation in our historic buildings."

Foodari at Kent Life is open weekdays 10am to 5pm and weekends 10am to 6pm.

A good solicitor has to have academic excellence as the law is so intensely complicated. Every day we are talking internally to try to resolve problems and clarify points of law

NIGEL BURNETT, ON MAKING THE GRADE

Having spent the last 30 years expanding his workforce to handle the commercial, private client and litigation cases CooperBurnett now handles, Nigel has an in-depth understanding of the skills required to undertake the job.

"A good solicitor has to have academic excellence as the law is so intensely complicated. Every day we are talking internally to try to resolve problems and clarify points of law.

"They also need to be approachable and have a lot of self discipline to manage their desk and clients properly. If you say you are going to ring them back you do so.

"If something has to be done by a deadline you don't leave it to the last minute. You get it done so if something crops up you are not caught out.

"When we hire a new solicitor we're searching for perfection. That doesn't exist so we get as close as we can."

Speaking about the next generation of solicitors, I ask Nigel if he has started to consider his own retirement.

"It's a good few years away yet," he said. "And besides, I think it's dangerous thinking about that as it could become attractive."

Feeling good on the inside

Kent Office Solutions can help any business looking to relocate make the crucial move with the minimum of cost and concern

By Simon Robinson

simon.robinson@archant.co.uk

SPECIALIST interiors and furniture firm Kent Office Solutions is urging businesses to rethink their relocation routine.

The Canterbury-based company, which assists clients in replacing everything from a single desk or chair through to a total office refurbishment, also offers detailed and cost-saving space planning.

Managing director Adrian Ponting said companies who were looking to move into relocating should utilise their services at the beginning of the move rather than at the end.

He said: "We can pre-survey clients' office needs based on variables such as the number of staff and filing requirements.

"That way we can tell them what sort of space they will need before they look in to searching for new premises.

"We want to encourage firms that are considering relocating to come to us as first port of call as well as at the end of the process, when we can put together floor plans and visuals."

Ponting added that firms who knew their precise space requirements ahead of a new office search would save money in the long-term. "Moving premises, whether to leased or freehold, involves a significant investment, it is important to future-proof that investment and we can help".

"With an issue such as filing it is important to get the right kind of filing for the right kind of job. In most cases we can reduce the footprint required by 50 per cent", he said.

"If a company has prime town centre premises, where they are paying, say, £50 per foot for office space, a SOUND PLAN: Detailed drawings give clients the chance to visualise what their office will look like off the page and help to flag up any layout issues four drawer filing cabinet is costing £150 per year to house. There is potentially a lot of money to be saved by detailed analysis of filing requirements."

Taxing times ahead for owners of empty property

THE Government's radical reduction of the empty property rates exemption threshold has come into effect.

Under the previous system, owners of properties with a rateable value of less than £18,000 did not have to pay the tax applied to buildings that have been vacant for more than three months. As of April 1, this threshold figure has been cut to just £2,600.

Local government minister Bob Neill said the move will save the Exchequer £400 million in this financial year alone. But the move has been criticised by business and property leaders.

Richard Stafford, director at Ashford-based chartered surveyors Taylor Riley, said: "The Government will rake in a big bag of money but they're taking it from people who can least afford it. It's not helping farmers and investors.

"A lot of farmers converted their redundant buildings into industrial units and offices and then let them. All the time the buildings were used for agricultural purposes they did not pay rates but now, if the property is empty, not only are they not receiving any income but they're being forced to pay money out. They are worse off than they were before.

"Similarly, little private investors who decided they wanted to take their pension fund into their own hands and invest in commercial property has found they are no longer making any money and are paying rates.

"I would have kept the threshold at £18,000. It's a good figure as it figures in rating terminology as a natural break point and is therefore a logical point to hang your hat."

Business rates advisers CVS senior ratings consultant, Chris Barker, said the previous relief provided small business with protection at a time of "genuine hardship".

"Removing it will have very serious consequences for thousands of small businesses across England and Wales at the worst possible time," he said.

Barker added that the announcement sent out "mixed signals" about the Government's confidence in economic recovery.

"It's interesting to note, according to the Government's figures, the move will save the Treasury £400 million a year in lost revenue – a sharp uplift from the £185 million it cost to operate the relief in 2009-2010," he said.

It's jobs for Kent

Water way to earn a living with Thames

BUDDING engineers and technicians have been invited to tap into a career at Thames Water by applying to be one of the company's newest recruits.

The firm, which supplies water and sewerage services to homes across north Kent, wants to hear from dedicated workers who want to join its Mechanical and Electrical Apprenticeship Programme, or Process and Production Apprenticeship Programme.

Successful mechanical and electrical applicants will be enrolled in a four-year apprenticeship with on-the-job training from operations teams in London and the Thames Valley, who are working on some of the biggest engineering projects in Europe.

Those with an interest in science and the environment will be enrolled on a three-year scheme, working at one of the company's water or sewage treatment works.

Nick Thompson, resourcing specialist at Thames Water, said: "Our apprenticeship scheme has been running annually for about 20 years, and this year we have allocated 15 'earn while you learn' places.

"This is an excellent opportunity for people to join a vibrant and diverse company."

The closing date for applications is Friday, May 13. Visit www.thameswater.co.uk and click on 'careers', or call 0845 4607 305 to apply.

Thames Water is the UK's largest water and wastewater services company, supplying 2,600 million litres of tap water to 8.7 million customers every day.

One of the firm's current apprentices Katarzyna Gill said: "I always wanted to protect the environment and work with people.

"Thames Water has sent me on a course at Bolton College, and by the end of my studies I'm going to achieve an advanced diploma in water treatment process, which is one of the components of the advanced apprenticeship in water and sewage treatment along with my level 2 key skills and an NVQ3 in controlling process operations.

"I'm enjoying being a student as well as being a Thames Water employee. Everyone is very supportive and enthusiastic, and it's a real pleasure to be part of the team.

Women signing up to skilled trade change

What is your business doing to help Keep Kent Working? Do you send employees on training courses to aid their personal development or run apprenticeship schemes? If you have a good news story email steve.knight@kosmedia.co.uk or give him a call on 01303 817136.

SPARKING INTEREST: Electrician Charlotte Riddle, from West Malling, set up her own business Connected Domestic Electricians with help from dad Paul

steve.knight@archant.co.uk

AN INCREASING number of women are considering a change in career to prepare for the eventual recovery of the property market.

According to a survey conducted by the National Inspection Council for Electrical Installation Contracting (NICEIC), 63 per cent of women aged 16-24 said they were more interested in learning a skilled trade rather than a profession.

The most popular job among those polled was as an electrician (35 per cent) followed by carpentry (21 per cent) and plumbing (20 per cent).

West Malling resident Charlotte Riddle, 30, set up her own business after obtaining City & Guilds qualifications in 'electrical installations' and 'inspecting/testing electrical equipment', as well as a Level 3 NVQ.

She said: "I think one of the main reasons we see few female electricians is a lack of awareness.

We need to inform young women that careers in electrical engineering are accessible, highly rewarding and not restricted to men, so there is no need for apprehension.

"Many people booking an electrician think it will be a man coming to call. Indeed, some take me for the receptionist when I answer the office phone and they ask what time 'he' – the electrician – will be arriving.

"This is not sexism, just natural assumptions people make because the trade is so male-dominated. However, these old-fashioned attitudes need to change."

After qualifying as an electrician Charlotte became Part-P registered to comply with building regulations and went into partnership with her father.

She says their business – Connected Domestic Electricians – has built up a wide client base and is prospering despite the difficult economic conditions.

"It can be exhausting sometimes," she added. "Luckily I have my father on board to help out.

We work as a team to get jobs done on time, within budget. Newly-qualified electricians looking to start their own businesses should consider partnership rather than going it alone. They can't teach you everything at college; much of what you learn is on-the-job."

Last month KoS revealed how women were being encouraged to take up careers in the construction industry to capitalise on the eventual recovery of the property market.

Despite the current high jobless figures in the South East, construction employment is forecast to reach 395,740 in 2015, with an average rate of 5,440 new workers needed every year.

Charlotte's company is one of many registered with Checkatrade, which helps people avoid cowboy builders by providing a free directory of vetted tradespeople and service providers across the UK.

Managing director Kevin Byrne said: "It is great to see more women opting for hands-on careers. It means the number of independent female traders registering with us will rise."

Kent Youth Choir singer lands spot at exclusive music training centre

A TALENTED student from Kent Music's County Choirs group has been given the chance to train with some of the best musicians at Birmingham Conservatoire.

Davina Brownrigg, from Hernhill, near Faversham, has been a member of Kent Music's choirs for the last four years, including one year with Kent Youth Singers and three years with the Kent Youth Choir.

The youngster has now been offered a place to study for a Bachelor of Music in voice and opera at the Birmingham Conservatoire.

Davina said of her time at Kent Music: "I have loved every course, learned fantastic repertoire and made like-minded friends."

"I would like to thank the staff at Kent Youth Choir for helping me on my journey to becoming a Birmingham Conservatoire student."

Davina has also been offered a place on Youth Music Theatre: UK, which gives talented youngsters the opportunity to perform never-before-heard musicals and even write and create their own.

Thousands apply every year with only 250 being selected. This year Davina will be performing in Aberdeen at the organisation's International Youth Festival.

Visit www.kent-music.com for more information on all of Kent Music's activities and county groups.

Young chefs receive tips from the top

CELEBRITY chef Richard Phillips shared some of the secrets to his success after opening a new restaurant run by students at MidKent College.

Phillips, who owns several eateries throughout Kent, helped youngsters currently embarking on level-three catering courses prepare canapés for the grand opening of the Pavilion at the college's Gillingham campus.

The courses, called extended diplomas, are mostly undertaken by 16-19-year-olds and can lead to university or a role within the student's chosen field of catering in a professional establishment.

Phillips, who has appeared on a number of daytime television programmes, participated in a ceremonial ribbon-cutting alongside principal Stephen Grix and the head of faculty for services to people, Beverley Noble.

His group executive chef Chris Bower was also in attendance to help prepare the food for the 150 people in attendance.

Phillips said: "This has been a fantastic evening highlighted by the superb food and service from the students. It is heartening to know that the future of Kent's dining and catering is in excellent hands."

Mr Grix added: "We are delighted that Richard has offered his support to the restaurant."

"It has been absolutely terrific for our students to work alongside such a fantastic role model, and for Richard to share with us in celebrating the restaurant's launch."

ADVICE: Richard Phillips with student Ben Brice

"We hope the Pavilion Restaurant will become a regular stop-off for many local families, couples and businesses."

Last month shadow Chancellor Ed Balls enjoyed a meal of belly of pork with champ potato, savoy cabbage, carrot puree and peppercorn sauce at the eatery, and told students it was one of the best he had ever dined in.

The restaurant hopes to attract local businesses and individuals for its lunch, dinner and fine dining evening. Call 01634 383327 for more information or to book a reservation.

Say 'bonjour' to a new language thanks to Medway taster sessions

PEOPLE interested in learning a new language are being invited to sign up to one of Medway Adult and Community Learning Service's new short taster courses.

The First Steps sessions promise to teach more than just the word "hello" in 12 different languages including Chinese, Mandarin, Japanese, Greek, Spanish, French, Arabic, Polish, Turkish, Italian, Russian, Dutch, and German.

The five-session courses start this Tuesday, April 26, at the adult learning centres in Eastgate, Rochester, and Green Street, Gillingham.

TERMS & CONDITIONS

ARCHANT KOS MEDIA LTD
TERMS AND CONDITIONS

- Advertisements will be accepted only on the express condition that the advertiser warrants that the advertisement does not in any way contravene any existing legislation and in particular the Trade and Description Act 1968 and the Consumer Credit Act 1974.
- It is the responsibility of all advertisers to ensure that all advertising meets all forms of government legislation and Archant KOS Media Ltd (the "media owner") takes no responsibility for liability in errors and omissions to the content of our media.
- All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.
- All rates within the annual advertising agreement will be rate protected for 12 months from the first date of publication under the signed agreement.
- Any unsuitable material posted on any website belonging to Archant KOS Media Ltd by the advertiser or any associated third party will be removed or refused. All passwords and security supplied to the advertiser by Archant KOS Media Ltd in relation to the use of the posting of material via the media owner's online administration tool will be the responsibility of the advertiser. The advertiser indemnifies Archant KOS Media Ltd against any damages as a result of misuse of these privileges by either the advertiser or any third party given password privileges by the advertiser.
- Archant KOS Media Ltd reserves the right to change passwords intermittently to ensure the overall and ongoing security of its websites within the public domain.
- Copyright and licenses for voice-over/music/photography or film for advertising promotions or otherwise within the various forms of media in print, online and moving film owned by Archant KOS Media Ltd must have been sought, verified or paid for by the advertiser where applicable. Approval or permissions must have been given by any potential beneficiary owner of voice-over or music. The advertiser must be able to verify any statements or claims (promotional or otherwise) in relation to their products/services promoted within any of the media offerings belonging to Archant KOS Media Ltd.
- Where shrinkage of an advertisement occurs for whatever reason, the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre where it relates to the media owner's printed publications. This will NOT apply to full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.
- Archant KOS Media Ltd reserves the right to omit or refuse any advertisement/commercial/web content without notice or explanation. In these terms the word "advertiser" shall be construed to include any person or organisation placing an advertisement on behalf of another.
- A guarantee of insertion cannot be given and the media owners shall not be liable for any loss or damage caused by any error or inaccuracy within their marketing content. In no case shall the total liability of the media owner for any error or omission exceed the price charged by the media owners for that advertising.
- No liability is accepted for any loss or damage alleged to have arisen through delay in forwarding replies to Box numbers, however caused, nor for the loss or damage to any artwork supplied.
- Claims for any error or inaccuracy in your media messages with Archant KOS Media Ltd must be made in writing to the accounts department within 10 days of publishing.
- Archant KOS Media Ltd accepts no responsibility for any errors or omissions made on their websites by the advertiser.
- Archant KOS Media Ltd has the right to cancel the advertiser's annual membership without notice should the advertiser deliberately publish out of date material or content on any of the media owner's online digital platforms. Archant KOS Media Ltd shall be entitled to recover in full all outstanding invoices in relation to the signed annual membership as a result of the advertiser's negligence in this regard and reserves the right to claim damages for any potential vexatious action via the advertiser.
- Advertisers are requested to check their advertisements after the first insertion. The media owner will not be responsible for any errors on subsequent insertions, which have not been advised to them in writing.
- A minimum of one month's notice must be given in writing for any cancellation of the signed annual advertiser's agreement. Upon cancellation, all discounts from Archant KOS Media's standard effective media advertising rate card (July 2008-June 2009) will be recalculated and adjusted accordingly. In line with Archant KOS Media's standard media rate card (effective July 2008-June 2009) and will reflect the revised length of commitment denoted by the advertiser's written cancellation. Any surcharges, refunds or costs in relation to the production of the advertiser's TV commercial for the commitment set out within the advertiser's agreement will be met in full by the advertiser as per Archant KOS Media's standard media advertising rate card (July 2008-June 2009). Discounts will be reapplied and any refunds or surcharges will be paid by either party within 30 days of the advertiser's written cancellation. Any other advertising placed must give a written notice of seven days' written notice and any discounts given for series bookings will be forfeited by the advertiser upon cancellation.
- Seasonal contracts. Your Professional classified advertisements or any uplift advertising within the annual contract with the advertiser will be invoiced in full - at rate card - on receipt of any written cancellation of this contract within the 12-months.
- All uplift advertisements must be booked in at least three months in advance of publication and will be subject to availability. All dates booked will be on a first-come, first-served basis.
- The advertiser must agree to the date and time of filming of any online TV advertising commercial supplied by Archant KOS Media Ltd within the advertiser's agreement. (Platinum, Gold, Silver standard of commercial). Should, for any reason, the advertiser not be available at the agreed time without giving sufficient notice (at least 48 hours), Archant KOS Media Ltd reserves the right to charge for any further TV production at its standard published hourly rate should the advertiser still wish to use Archant KOS Media Ltd's production services to complete its TV commercial or photographic imagery included in the advertiser's agreement. The advertiser will approve and accept that there are only two choices of voice-over and music offered by Archant KOS Media Ltd. Should an advertiser wish to use other voice-overs or non-copyright free music it is the responsibility of the advertiser to pay the PHS rights should they be required to do so. Any changes to or failure to approve the TV production by the deadlines agreed between both parties will result in Archant KOS Media Ltd being given permission by the advertiser to replace the TV commercial with pictures or stills from a choice of photography supplied by the media owner until the advertiser can supply a TV commercial produced at their own cost and risk outside of this agreement. The advertiser also accepts and agrees that this action would not reduce value or cost of their membership. Any cost of changes required to the TV commercial throughout the advertiser's agreement will be borne by the advertiser outside of this agreement.
- Each advertiser accepts that their ranking and position within Archant KOS Media Ltd's search engine will be equal to those within their category (Platinum, Gold, Silver, Bronze, etc) other than they will be ranked based on the search engine criteria of optimisation within their level (Platinum, Gold, Silver or Bronze).
- Any delivery claims made by the advertiser or discount vouchers published within the print or online media of Archant KOS Media Ltd and any action as a result of the public or otherwise is the sole responsibility of the advertiser. Any claims resulting from this via Archant KOS Media Ltd must be met by the advertiser.
- a. All credit accounts due for payment shall be notified to the Advertiser by the 30th day following the date of invoice, time to be of the essence. All sums due to Archant KOS Media Ltd shall be paid in full, and the Advertiser shall have no right of set off in any circumstances.
- b. In the event that payment is not received by Archant KOS Media Ltd or RBS Factoring by the due date, the media owner shall be entitled to suspend all further advertising until payment is received and/or repudiate the contract and make any surcharges for breaking the contract.
- c. In the event that payment is not received by Archant KOS Media Ltd by the due date, the media owner reserves the right to charge interest on all overdue balances calculated on a daily basis at the rate of two per cent above the minimum lending rate of National Westminster Bank Plc from time to time in force.
- d. Notwithstanding anything in these terms and conditions or implied to the contrary, in the event of the Advertiser ceasing to use the services of Archant KOS Media Ltd (for whatever reason), the whole amount of monies due from the Advertiser to the date of cessation shall fall due for immediate payment.
- e. The Advertiser will be liable for all costs incurred by Archant KOS Media Ltd in the recovery of debts not paid by the due date.
- f. Payment may be made by cheque, credit transfer, direct debit, cash and any major credit card.
23. Any discount which Archant KOS Media Ltd may have agreed with the Advertiser shall be forfeited in the event of failure by the Advertiser to complete the contract or to meet the above credit terms.
24. Advertising Agency commission will be allowed to those advertisers recognised by the Newspaper Society, but shall not exceed ten per cent and will be subject to the terms of that recognition. This commission will not be allowed if the Advertising Agency fails to meet the terms.
25. All private advertisements and certain categories as laid down by Archant KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd must be prepaid.
26. The Advertiser agrees to indemnify Archant KOS Media Ltd in respect of all costs, damages or other charges falling upon the media owners or any of the companies within the Archant KOS Media Group as the result of legal action or threatened legal action or threatened legal arising from the publication of any advertisement or advertising promotion.
27. An order for an advertisement shall amount to acceptance of these terms and conditions, and any condition placed on an order by an Advertiser shall be null and void in so far as it conflicts with them.
28. Copyright in advertisements produced wholly or partially by the media owners belong to Archant KOS Media Ltd. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the media owner's written consent. All terms and conditions stated above are in place to protect the advertiser, the media owner and the communities they serve within the public domain as well as the beneficial rights of individuals and organisations. Archant KOS Media will endeavour to always act reasonably in applying its terms and conditions. Effective from June 2009.

THE INTERVIEW

Searchers find their true place

Group's journey from Sixties pop stardom to a nostalgia act has been eventful, learns Ed Hill

THE Searchers came to prominence when Merseybeat hit the charts in the early 1960s. Along with Gerry And The Pacemakers and – most famously – The Beatles, they made British pop a global phenomenon.

Bassist Frank Allen joined the group after meeting them in Hamburg.

He said: "We were all playing at the Star-Club along with bands like the Beatles. You got the chance to play for good money in front of enthusiastic German crowds. I got to share the stage with American idols like Ray Charles, Fats Domino, the Everly Brothers and Little Richard. It was fantastic."

Allen, who was with Cliff Bennett And The Rebel Rousers, got to know The Searchers members and they immediately hit it off.

He said: "They were moderate-living guys in a sea of insanity. Everything was available, including drugs and women. Many went a bit crazy, but Mike, John and Chris were just three nice guys from Liverpool."

Six months later The Beatles turned the music world upside down when they reached No 1. Off the back of Merseybeat's success, The Searchers became international stars after chart hits Sweets For My Sweet and Needles And Pins.

Allen said: "About a year later they needed a new bass-player. I must have seemed a good choice. I was lucky to have met them before because I was from London. They might have gone for someone from Liverpool."

Allen brought a distinctive sound to the group, playing bass with his fingers and slapping the strings. He said: "No one in Britain was playing like that, but I'd seen Americans play with their fingers. I kept losing plectrums and would start playing with my fingers. The slapping came from keeping time on 'rest' notes."

The Searchers' recording career had its ups and downs, but the band continued to tour.

Allen said: "Touring has always been the biggest thing for us. We could never have relied on record sales to make a living. We seem to instil this amazing loyalty among people. They're not just coming to hear a few songs. Fans feel they know us and we're always happy to meet them."

"Even in our heyday we weren't protected by minders. If fans wanted to meet us, they could. We never knew how to say no. The concert is a potted history of the band. There's a lot of interaction with the audience."

Allen has also made a name for himself writing about his career: "I've always been interested in writing and had done articles for newspapers. Then a publisher asked me to write a book. I was given six months to write Travelling Man – a humorous look at being in the band."

Allen's book was well received, making him the obvious choice to write an in-depth biography. The Searchers And Me took four years to write.

They still have one of the busiest touring programmes of any band, but Allen is realistic about their position.

He said: "We're a nostalgia act and probably not going to have another hit. There's nothing wrong with that. The biggest nostalgia band in the world is The Rolling Stones – they just happen to fill stadiums rather than theatres."

• The Searchers are at The Gulbenkian Theatre, Canterbury, on Saturday, April 30. Visit www.kent.ac.uk/gulbenkian.

TALKING POINT

IT IS almost four years since 17-month-old Peter Connelly – better known as Baby P – died after suffering sustained abuse at the hands of his mother, her boyfriend and their lodger.

The fact social workers failed to spot the cruelty sent shockwaves throughout the UK, and led to questions being asked of every child protection team in the country.

But as council officers in the north London borough of Haringey were forced to leave their jobs over the scandal, a storm cloud was brewing just 60 miles away at County Hall in Maidstone.

Eager to ensure a Baby P-type tragedy was not allowed to happen in Kent, vigilant members of the public bombarded the county council's social services team with information on children whose welfare they were concerned about.

But it became clear last December that staff just could not cope with the increased demand, so much so that Kent County Council now has some 2,700 at-risk children on its books who do not have allocated social workers.

And with Ofsted breathing down its neck after rating the children's social services department as "poor", it's safe to say the authority has a lot of work to do to win back public confidence.

"It's a fact of life that one child can slip through the net of even a well-run organisation," said the troubleshooter brought in to transform Kent's child protection service, Malcolm Newsam.

"The issue for me is to make the service as safe as possible as quickly as possible to mitigate the risk of that happening here. There are more risks in Kent than I would want, and that's why we are rapidly trying to make improvements."

The first indication something was wrong came last August when Ofsted inspectors carried out an unannounced spot-check of Kent's children's social services department.

Their conclusion was that children were at risk of harm due to inadequate and late assessments, which the council admitted was due in part to a shortage of experienced social workers.

But it was not until a follow-up inspection two months later, which resulted in the safeguarding and looked-after children services at KCC being rated as "inadequate", that the full scale of the problem became clear.

Areas of concern raised included the management and supervision of services, low educational attainment of looked-after children, high number of cases not receiving quality assessments, and social workers with high case loads.

KCC leader Paul Carter admitted at the time he was unaware of how poorly run the service was.

But as Mr Newsam explained, it is a risky business to live off of former glories.

"You've always got to be striving to improve because if you take your eye off the ball or relax for one moment, the service can go into a rapid decline," he said.

"The fundamental failings in the system were more entrenched than even the Ofsted inspectors would have led you to believe. We had social workers struggling with the workload, a temperamental computer system, staff vacancies and the loss of key managers, and the rapid decline had begun some years before.

"Everything I do is about making the current circumstances very transparent to the council and the community because then they will be less vulnerable to these issues of decline in the future.

"Councillors got reassurances that everything was OK, and they feel caught out. My job is to make sure that doesn't happen again."

One councillor who can attest to Mr Newsam's comments is Jenny Whittle, who in January was given the newly-created position of cabinet member for specialist children's services.

She admits elected members had no idea of the scale of the problem prior to the Ofsted inspections.

"When Malcolm Newsam came in he gave a

The KCC department charged with looking after the county's most vulnerable children is currently rated as 'poor'. The damning Ofsted report came as shock to councillors, who brought in troubleshooter Malcolm Newsam to put the service back on track. Here, he tells reporter STEVE KNIGHT there are no quick fixes, but he will solve the problems presentation to cabinet members, and to say I was alarmed may be an understatement," she said. "There were nearly 2,700 children that did not have an allocated social worker, and that was something that had never been highlighted.

"We knew there were problems with caseloads and recruitment but much of what came out was a shock."

On average Kent receives about 2,000 child referrals per month, including about 180 a week in Thanet alone.

KCC also has the responsibility of 900 asylum-seeking children as well as about 1,500 looked-after youngsters placed in Kent by other councils.

So what is County Hall doing to ensure it copes better with the increased demand in the weeks and months to come?

Mr Newsam has identified several "pillars of improvement" – including transparency, strong leadership and improved working conditions to attract experienced social workers – which he says are crucial to turning the service around.

Meanwhile, Cllr Whittle has set up a number of cross-party council committees to ensure members are fully briefed on improvements and so they can have a say in how the department is run.

She has also been visiting social workers on the ground to get a feel for the job. She said: "It's a gruelling and challenging job, and they're making life-changing decisions on a daily basis.

"It's the biggest priority KCC has. I've also been assured finance is not an issue in putting things right."

While it is clear that KCC is taking Ofsted's criticism seriously, it has a long road ahead.

Mr Newsam says it will take at least two to three years to receive a "good" or "outstanding" from Ofsted.

He said: "It's a long-term project, the first phase of which is to take the millstone off social workers. That's why we are bringing in a team of 30 who will move around the county to help remove the backlog, hopefully by the end of August.

"We've got to get out of the hole we've dug and we absolutely will be able to achieve that."

CHILDREN'S SERVICES:

KCC receives around 2,000 child referrals a month, and the service is under great strain – pressures Malcolm Newsam (below) has been brought in to deal with

'SUICIDE' MISSION: An artist's recreation of the attack led by Second Lieutenant Crowe, in the front

VC winner honoured thanks to his rifle club

By Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

A HERO soldier who practised his marksmanship as part of the Dover Rifle Club in the years leading up to World War One, was honoured at a ceremony in Belgium last Sunday.

John James Crowe was awarded the Victoria Cross in the field by King George V on August 6, 1918, in the closing phase of the war after surviving a "suicide mission" to fight off the enemy.

And now the scene of his desperate action has a plaque to mark it, after a call to remember his actions, led by rifle club secretary Billy Hollis.

During March, 1918, the Germans had launched a series of desperate attacks in an effort to break the will of the Allies – newly reinforced by US troops – using manpower released from the Eastern Front by the collapse of Russia.

The Germans attacked again on the Franco-Belgian border on April 7.

Sixty members of the Second Battalion of the Worcestershire Regiment were trapped in the former town hall building which was used as a hospice at the village of Neuve Eglise.

The commanding officer gave permission for Second Lieutenant John Crowe to lead seven men to clear the enemy out of a nearby cowshed.

The officer then took two volunteers and crawled along a gutter, from there they crept up beside a hedge onto a rise and opened fire on the enemy lining the hedge. They then rushed at two machine guns which were aimed at the building, firing as they ran.

One of 2nd Lt Crowe's companions was killed but the machine gun post was captured and the enemy fled.

The second battalion then left carrying their wounded and withdrew to British lines and 2nd Lt Crowe later received the French Croix de Guerre.

Mr Hollis said: "When I went to the battle scene I was amazed that there was no memorial. What this man did was fantastic. It was practically a suicide mission."

From 1908-11 the Worcesters were stationed at Dover and during that time, as Colour Sergeant, Crowe was a successful and well respected member of the Dover Rifle Club.

Mr Hollis said: "He had learnt at first to shoot as the son of a gamekeeper in Ireland, shooting rabbits and the like.

"When he was based in Dover he joined the club – even though he won many awards for his shooting in the Army

"He regularly posted scores like 100-100 for us, we still have the records."

The plaque was unveiled in Nieuwekerke – the new name of the village – by Doreen Panneet, the granddaughter of John Crowe, accompanied by members of his family.

"The building is now a hostel for young people," said Mr Hollis. "When this whole project started they had no idea of what happened but they have all got involved, along with other Belgians.

"Now the heroic memory of John Crowe – who retired from the military as a captain – is commemorated in Belgium. His VC is held at the regimental museum in Worcester."

Officers from the Mercian Regiment – which incorporates the Worcester, members of the Western Front Association and members of the Ramsgate 1957 and Dover 1900 rifle club – also attended.

Many Belgian dignitaries, representatives of the British Torch of Remembrance, Belgian branch, and the Royal British Legion were at the ceremony.

During the Menin Gate Last Post ceremony in Ypres on the evening of Sunday a wreath was laid by Captain Crowe's family in memory of the soldiers in the Worcestershire Regiment who gave their lives at the battle of Neuve Eglise.

"It was a moving and very proud occasion for all of us," said Mr Hollis.

Savour superb dining on the coast with the most RESTAURANTS in Kent not only enjoy the advantage of having access to an abundance of fruit and vegetables from the county's lush, fertile land and a sea teeming with fish and seafood, but many benefit from beautiful locations, too – rural, coastal and even urban.

The Minnis, a former 1930s café probably has one of the best locations in east Kent, sitting as it does on a grass bank, overlooking Minnis Bay near Birchington, halfway between Ramsgate and Whitstable. Diners can make the most of the gorgeous views across the sandy beach and into the horizon over the North Sea, watching spectacular sunsets, either by eating alfresco or inside the restaurant.

Until eight years ago, the Minnis was a predictable seaside café, serving up staple English fare – steaks, scampi, chips. But when Jason Freedman, the current chef patron, took it over, he saw its wider potential in a culinarily deprived area and grabbed the opportunity to serve a more ambitious and creative menu.

Though largely self-taught, Jason's inspiration lies with great names, such as Anton Mossiman, whose cuisine naturelle focuses on the flavour of individual ingredients

The Minnis near Birchington has adopted an ambitious approach to reinventing itself, as Kiki Case discovered

GLORIOUS FOR SHORE:

Thanet's wonderful sunsets provide a stunning backdrop to the isle's increasingly impressive culinary experience and on presentation. Take his desserts, for example. A couple of years ago, while dreaming up a dessert aimed at women (I forgot to ask him why), he came up with the idea of a deconstructed Pims cocktail. He now has a selection of four such deconstructed cocktails on the menu – Mojito, Strawberry Margarita, Pina Colada, Beach Bum.

The Mojito dessert, for example, is made up of Mojito jelly, lime bavarois, mint sorbet, sugared white rum and lime foam, mint glass and mint pearls, while the Pina Colada is almond cake, with coconut ice-cream, pineapple jelly, chocolate, toasted coconut, coconut cream, white rum and pineapple syrup.

His latest challenge has been to use the art of home-curing, smoking, brining and pickling for the spring and summer menus. Inspired by Stephen Harris, of Michelin-starred The Sportsman in nearby Seasalter, he has been making salt beef, corned beef with dripping, smoked pancetta, home-cured streaky bacon, sweet-cured air-dried pork loin, pastrami, chorizo, salami and merguez. These are served within dishes, or on platters, with home-pickled vegetables and homemade chutneys.

The Minnis is open all day and has an assortment of menus – à la carte, vegetarian, purely mussels (done 10 different ways, using flavours from around the world), seafood on a platter, including lobster, crab and oysters, and a light lunch bar menu, incorporating lighter dishes such as ploughman's, sandwiches, crab cakes and soup, with heavier dishes, such as battered mackerel burger and chips, coq au vin and spicy meatballs. There's even a section with homemade potted, pickled and cured fish and seafood.

• The restaurant is open every day from 10am-11pm (last orders for food 9pm/8pm on Sundays). Bookings can be made on 01843 841844 or bookings@theminnis.co.uk. Full details can be found on the website – www.theminnis.co.uk.

Farmers' markets

Dartford

DARTFORD farmers' market began in November 2005 at the request of Dartford Borough Council and has been running since then on the third Friday of each month. The market is held in Dartford high street and is open between 10am and 2pm.

Whitfield

WHITFIELD farmers' market is held every Thursday from 9am to 12am in the village hall. It is a very busy market, with 200-300 customers through the door each week. Fresh fish on offer includes scallops, crabs, lobsters and local fish in season.

Rolvenden

ROLVENDEN farmers' market was established in 2000. It is run entirely by volunteers and is non-profit-making, with stall fees kept to a minimum. It takes place every Thursday morning from 10am to midday noon in the new village hall and St Mary's Church.

Stansted

STANSTED farmers' market is open on the first Thursday of every month and was opened as an alternative to the village shop. It sells a range of local produce, all of high quality, and is very popular with visitors from a wide area of the county.

Iwade

IWADE village hall first opened its farmers' market in February 2009. It is open on the first Sunday of the month from 10am to 1pm. Stalls offer fresh seasonal local produce, including organic meats and a wide range of other items.

Canterbury

THE market is held every day except for Monday in the Goods Shed in Station Road and is one of the most popular in east Kent, with fresh local meat and vegetables and other produce always tailored to the seasons and freshly delivered.

Across the county

New owners for a deer old friend

THE White Hart is a family-run pub and restaurant that has recently reopened.

Its new landlords are determined to restore this historic pub back to its former glory, so all the food is handled and prepared with care to produce exceptionally fresh and delicious dishes.

Home-baked bread is produced daily, and specialities of the house include pasta and cured hams and excellent chargrilled steaks.

An à la carte menu and Sunday roast is available, and booking is advisable.

In the bar, customers will find an excellent selection of real ales from all over Kent, including selections from the Hopdaemon brewery and Shepherd Neame.

Continental lagers, fine wines and Champagnes are all available, so there is a drink for every occasion.

The decadent desserts are all freshly made, along with a selection of fresh coffees that provide the ideal way to finish any meal.

The Steak Night every Tuesday has proven to be very successful and the popular Sunday roast is served from noon to 6pm.

Locals and those paying a visit from out of town are always assured a warm welcome at this popular eatery.

Head-chef James Pearce specialises in Italian cuisine, and live music takes place on Sunday nights. There is a garden, and a new outside bar is planned for the summer of 2011, along with a dining area allowing customers to eat alfresco.

Specials promise an explosion of flavour

Restaurant with chef who cooked for Bangladesh president

THE Taj Cuisine is a spacious and comfortable restaurant with a light and airy ambience.

Its award-winning chef once had the honour of cooking a meal for the president of Bangladesh, and he puts the same care and attention into every dish he prepares for diners in Kent.

Imaginative and exclusive dishes are prepared as freshly as they can possibly be, in Indian and Bangladeshi style, by attentive and courteous staff who ensure that each visit to the eatery is one that customers will long remember.

Chef Abul Monsur is always looking at creating new dishes and specialities, and he prides himself on combining carefully-selected spices to create an explosion of flavour for the taste buds.

Abul was 15 when he started cooking, and he worked for his uncle in London before coming to Kent and gaining more experience to perfect his art.

He has had his own restaurant for the last 12 years and won many awards, bringing the tastes of the exotic East to diners who want to experience the full flavours and spices that make Asian food so distinctive.

Chef's delicacy dishes include chingri dish, exquisite hot and spicy king prawns and fish massala – freshwater Bengal ayer fish with a touch of onion, garlic, cumin and cassia.

The restaurant is open Monday to Sunday from noon to 2.30pm and 6pm to 11.30pm. On Fridays it is open evenings only, from 6pm-11.30pm.

Fresh produce key ingredient to vegetarian options at The Hutch

FOLLOWING its opening on October 15, 2010, The Hutch vegetarian restaurant in Palace Street on The Kings Mile in Canterbury continues to provide first-class and delicious locally-sourced food.

During that time, owner Andrew Hutchinson has estimated that more than 50 per cent of his customers are not in fact vegetarian – he puts that surprising statistic down to changing dining habits and the quality and taste of the food.

"Our philosophy is to ensure that the food we serve is as well prepared and presented as we can possibly make it. Freshness is the key and we source as much as we can locally, so there is as short a time as possible between harvesting and the plate," he said.

"We also believe that when people choose to eat meat-free, then those diners should not feel deprived, so when they eat at The Hutch we try to make sure that we supply all the facilities expected of a city-centre restaurant.

"Our vegetarian Sunday roast has proved very popular, and we have hosted several birthday parties for different-sized groups.

"During the run-up to Christmas we supplied a four-course vegetarian alternative dinner that was well received, and in January we held a Burns Night celebration, complete with vegetarian haggis.

"Shortly afterwards, on Valentine's night, we were able to provide a sumptuous five-course romantic meal with music provided by local soprano Laura Kimpton."

The Hutch is open from Tuesday to Sunday for lunch and Tuesday to Saturday for dinner.

As a café bistro by day, there are light bites available, along with some more substantial lunchtime dishes.

At night the atmosphere changes to a more refined dining experience, with a good selection on each of the three courses of the à la carte menu, including vegan and gluten-free options on every course.

Whenever you visit The Hutch, be sure to check out the specials board for a changing array of dishes that have inspired the chef on that day.

RESTAURANT Review

Albion joins Broad choice

THERE'S nothing like a bit of healthy competition and for the vast array of restaurants in Broadstairs that's exactly what they're used to. Now there's another to add to the mix.

The Dining Room, in the refurbished Royal Albion Hotel, offers elegant English food with a touch of quirkiness.

Walking through to the restaurant you are drawn to spectacular views of the sea, which in the summer can be enjoyed from a terraced garden.

Although the décor seemed almost dated in comparison with its modern competitors, it fitted perfectly and, combined with the attentive waitress, made for a lovely ambience.

Two coffee cups of roasted pumpkin soup, bread and roasted pumpkin seeds was a nice touch.

For starters, my guest opted for the tian of smoked salmon, crab and brown shrimp (£4.95) and I chose crispy duck with mango and plum glaze on cucumber noodles (£5.95). Both were truly excellent.

My main was fillet of local cod, which came in an orange and sage butter with sautéed new potatoes (£13.95), and it was a decision well made.

The cod, again fresh, mixed with the citrus of the orange and was delicious and filling.

My companion went for the pork medallions with roast butternut squash and ginger with a wild mushroom and pork jus (£13.95). Lovely, she said, although more ginger would have been even lovelier.

We shared a cheese platter for dessert (£6.95). It was clear the kitchen had given us cheese for two, but the bill showed they had charged for just one, making me like this place even more.

And for a three-course meal with coffee and a bottle of Sauvignon Blanc, the total bill of £66.85 did not leave too big a dent in my purse.

Pilgrim's Progress

Visit www.kent.gov.uk/explorekent

Undertake your own pilgrim's route on this marvellous 50-mile (80km) circular ride using Regional Routes 16 and 17, linking Dover, Canterbury and Folkestone

This idyllic ride takes you along leafy lanes and bridleways amid rolling hills, woodland, country villages and hamlets, ideal for a cycle holiday or a mixture of great day rides.

It is advisable to start the journey anti-clockwise via Route 16, as the climb out of Dover is short and steep compared with the longer, harder climb out of Folkestone.

As you leave, take a moment to enjoy the stunning views of Dover Castle perched spectacularly above the White Cliffs. The castle was founded in the 12th century and has been described as the Key to England due to its defensive significance throughout history.

For a drink and something to eat to fortify you for the ride ahead, the Duke of York does well-priced meals and has a good range of beers and soft drinks, as well as hot drinks.

The route meanders through fine east Kent countryside, taking in historic villages such as Chillenden with its award-winning pub The Griffin's Head, famous for its oak beams and timbers, to Patricxbourne, where the North Downs Way leads to Canterbury.

The cathedral city has a wealth of history and culture to uncover. If you have time, it's a great idea to spend some here – some sights are not to be missed. The skyline is dominated by the stunning cathedral, the oldest in England.

The ancient ruins of St Augustine's Abbey and St Martin's Church form Canterbury's World Heritage Site, while other ruins such as the castle are reminders of the city's rich history. Although Canterbury is a place steeped in tradition, it is also a modern and vibrant city.

Luxury hotels, fine restaurants, lively nightclubs and welcoming pubs combine to give a complete experience.

Popular venues include the Abode Hotel, which is part of a group featuring the culinary creations of award-winning chef Michael Caines.

The city has a large number of historic pubs and modern bars to suit all tastes and the floral displays are at their best at this time of year, especially along the riverbank.

The return leg of your journey from Canterbury branches off route 16. You will pick up scenic Route 17 through the village of Bridge and follow quiet valley lanes to Elham.

Here you can visit Park Gate Down nature reserve, a grassland site with a superb range of orchids and other flora.

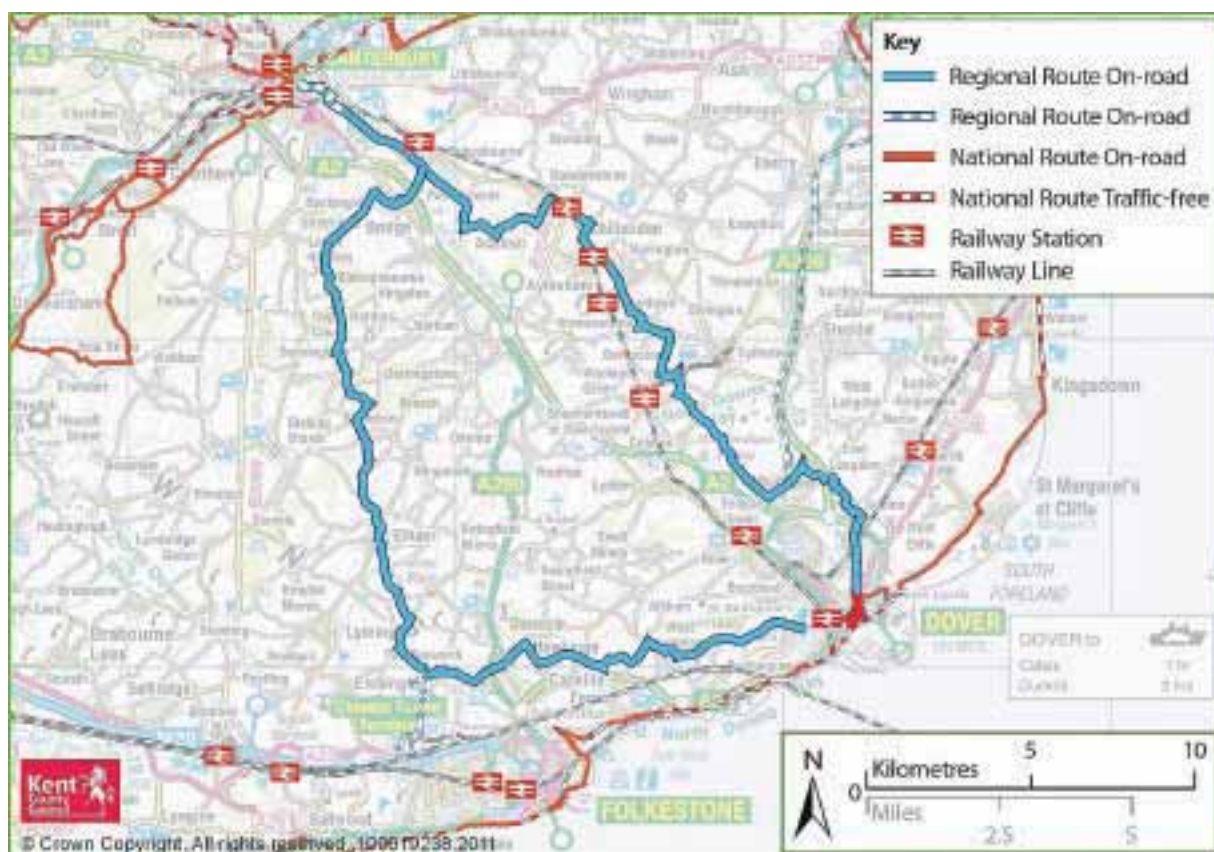

Good en-route signage allows you to join the journey at any point.

One-way day riders can let the train take the strain on the return leg thanks to convenient stations at Folkestone, Dover and Canterbury.

Easter Monday, April 25

VISITORS to Dickens World will have the chance to see the sights and sounds of the Victorian circus on Easter Monday. The Circus of Light will be presenting their Time Traveller's Guide to the 1850s. The show sees some of Dickens's favourite characters in a family friendly circus created specially for the themed attraction. See Oliver actually twist to form the most amazing contortionist duo in London and witness the Artful Dodger as he juggles knives, handkerchiefs and other ill-gotten gains. The circus includes fire, magic and a ringmaster to guide visitors on a journey meeting the most amazing characters from the Victorian age. Welcome to Charles Dickens and his wonderful world!

Port Lympne New animal attractions

Port Lympne, near Hythe
0844 8424647 or www.aspinalfoundation.org
Open 9.30am to 6pm

PORT Lympne Wild Animal Park has launched its much anticipated new experience. The park commenced a million-pound redevelopment scheme at the end of 2010 which is now complete and will see the safari ride become integral to the experience. Visitors are transported between four key on-foot zones where they can discover conservation first-hand with key exhibits and interactive educational displays. The park has also launched three new play areas and two new restaurants featuring large outdoor verandas with stunning views. Wildlife-lovers can also take advantage of the Passport scheme which means that customers can come back for a year from their first visit at no extra cost. Two new walkways through the European bison field and a rhino paddock mean that guests can explore previously out-of-bounds territory. There is also a pioneering new enclosure for the park's Pallas's cats, allowing the public unimpeded views. Managing director Bob O'Connor said: "We are hoping that this experience will put Port Lympne on the map as the must-see conservation attraction in the UK. We are dedicated to protecting and breeding some of the rarest species on the planet, so keep your eyes open for new arrivals on your visits."

Motor racing British Superbikes

Brands Hatch, Fawkham
Monday, April 25
0843 453 9000 or
www.motorsportvision.co.uk/

START your engines because this Easter weekend sees the return of the British Superbike Championship to Brands Hatch race circuit. The eagerly-anticipated opening round will feature 38 riders from eight different nations battling it out on the Kent track for the first time this season. Double BSB champion Shane 'Shakey' Byrne and Tommy Hill will be preparing to give their home crowd something to celebrate for the HM Plant Honda and Swan Yamaha teams respectively. Both riders have their sights set on victory, so expect a turf war between the two Kent riders, while Maidstone's Scott Smart will be vying for glory in the Evo class on his BSB return for the Moto Rapido Ducati team. There will be 21 races during the course of the weekend, with the big race day falling on Easter Monday. Race day will also feature the UK's first female stunt rider Chesca Miles, who has been hitting the headlines with her mix of motorcycle stunt-riding, modelling and singing career.

The Hop Farm Festival vibe at county fair

Hop Farm, Paddock Wood

Ticket prices and deals vary

THE Hop Farm has released details of its exciting plans for the sixth annual Kent County Fair, which will be held within its 500-acre site during the bank-holiday weekend. The fair attracts more than 12,000 visitors each year to celebrate uniquely Kentish activities, but this year there will be a few added twists as the farm introduces new entertainment for visitors of all ages. The new 'village fete' theme offers a tug of war, coconut shy and other games. Thrilling displays by Moto Stunts International will have the crowds in awe as they perform motorcycle and quad trick riding, high-speed cross-over routines, car crashes and rollovers. Performances from folk bands will create a buzzing atmosphere throughout each day. As day turns to night, the entertainment continues for families taking advantage of the camping experience, with live music and a disco. The main arena will play host to the Xtreme Falconry show.

kentish to the core

Ever since the Restaurant at Elvey Farm opened its doors to its first diners in 2007, it has gained an enviable reputation for a warm welcome and excellent food & wines served in stylish but relaxed surroundings in the heart of the Kent countryside.

Enjoy a glass of chilled sparkling wine or local cider from Biddenden Vineyards in the cosy bar on arrival while you peruse the extensive menu which celebrates our local Kent produce. Head chef Tony Lemaitre specialises in taking traditional dishes and giving them a modern twist, so you're sure to find something new and different when you dine at Elvey Farm.

Elvey Farm also boasts nine individually designed guest rooms in its converted barn, stable block and oast house, should you decide to stop for the night after a sumptuous dinner. It really is the perfect destination to sample modern Kentish cuisine at its best.

A BRITISH spring day could not be celebrated any better than with traditional Maypole dancing in the spectacular grounds of Hever Castle. Visitors to the former home of Queen Anne Boleyn can enjoy customary folk and Tudor dancing, against the glorious backdrop of the castle gardens. Families can also visit Kit and Kate's tent, where talented musicians will be on hand to talk about instruments of the period and demonstrate how each one is played. Visitors can then step into the award-winning gardens. Gardens open at 10.30am; castle opens at midday. Admission prices: adults £14; seniors £12; children £8. Trains Great Western line-up

Kent & East Sussex Railway Tenterden

April 30-May 2
Tel: 01580 765155

THE Annual Great Gala Weekend at the Kent and East Sussex Railway, which runs from Saturday, April 30, until Monday, May 2, will have a distinctly Great Western feel this year as the line plays host to one of the most outstanding locomotives built for the famous GWR. Dating from 1903 and built at the celebrated Swindon Locomotive Works, locomotive 3440 'City of Truro' is believed to be the first steam locomotive ever to reach a speed of 100mph. This feat was achieved when the engine was at the head of the important Ocean Mails express from Plymouth to London in 1904. This is the first time City of Truro has visited the K&ESR. The train is now part of the revered collection based at the National Railway Museum at York. It will be in action alongside the line's resident steam and diesel locomotives. Passenger trains will run along the 10.5 miles of restored line from Tenterden Town station to Northiam and Bodiam throughout the event, with a regular service from 10.30am until 4.30pm on all three days plus early-bird specials around 9.30am.

Dance Abba's music sets the tone

World Record Dance

Broadstairs Big Weekend
Friday to Sunday,
May 20-22

AS part of the first Big Broadstairs Weekend, a series of Abba-themed events will have dancing kings and queens in raptures. On Friday, May 20, the Abalicious tribute band will be performing at the Pavilion, while the following day there will be a public screening of Mamma Mia! on the beach and the events will culminate on Sunday with a charity Guinness World Record attempt to get 1,000 Dancing Queens performing a choreographed routine on the promenade. Participants can learn the moves via YouTube. It could be the biggest remote dance class ever. The piece has been created by choreographer Orit Sutton of Let's All Dance. The mass dance is community-led and will involve dancers of all ages and sexes, from local schools, businesses and even the local rugby club. The aim is to raise money for the Royal Marsden Cancer Campaign and Margate hospital's Special Care Baby Unit. Each participant is asked to raise £25. Organiser Fiona Crawford said: "This weekend is all about showcasing our beautiful town to the rest of Kent and beyond. It is also a great opportunity to raise money for charity." To find out more about participating in the dance, visit www.dancingqueens.org.

Craft show Gardening to highlight

Penhurst Place and Gardens
Saturday and Sunday,
April 30-May 1

THE WEALD of Kent Craft Show has announced a special guest for its opening-day visitors. Gardening expert, Daily Telegraph columnist and author Helen Yemm will offer advice to visitors as well as signing copies of her two new books, RHS Grow Your Own Flowers and Thorny Problems. The show, set in the scenic Penhurst Place and Gardens, will also showcase some of the finest handmade crafts to spruce up your home and garden. There will be delicious food and drink, live music, features, displays and a stunning show garden. Helen Yemm, who lives near Tunbridge Wells, is well known for her weekly Thorny Problems column in the Saturday Telegraph's Gardening supplement. She developed her passion in her first garden and soon found fame presenting two TV series, Gardening From Scratch on BBC Two and Gardening Week, a BBC daytime series. The show is open from 9.30am to 5.30pm. Buy tickets online at www.ichf.co.uk.

Dance and light show Blink

Margate seafront

Saturday, August 27
www.blinkmargate.com

WORLD-RENOWNED choreographer Wayne McGregor is working on a spectacular dance and pyrotechnic event to be staged on Margate seafront. Blink involves McGregor's Random Dance Company; Pan Optikum, who specialise in epic outdoor performances; and the sound artist Scanner to bring the waterfront alive with sound movement and light. The project is also looking for local people to get involved as part of the dance team. McGregor said: "Margate has an intriguing and enduring appeal and I was captivated by the opportunity to create something so site-specific outdoors."

Music Dervish bring Ireland sound

Gulbenkian Theatre,
Canterbury

Saturday, May 7, 7.45pm
www.thegulbenkian.co.uk

COUNTY Sligo's finest export, Dervish, have now been at the forefront of Irish traditional music for two decades. In that time they have taken their music worldwide, appearing everywhere from the Great Wall of China to Brazil's Rio Festival in front of an audience of 250,000. On stage, the band's live shows are characterised by their carefully-crafted arrangements as they subtly explore the endless rhythms and complexities that go to make great Irish music. Cathy Jordan is regarded by many as the most distinctive voice and finest front-woman in Irish music. She is joined by musicians playing bouzouki, mandola, flute, fiddle, bodhran and accordion to ensure that there is plenty of firepower to build an irresistible energy and capture the flavours of the Irish tradition. In Dervish, all the elements that make great Celtic music come together for a musical treat. Tickets £15, Encore! members £13. Call 01227 769075 or visit www.thegulbenkian.co.uk.

Theatre The Balloon Gardener

Gulbenkian Theatre,
Canterbury

Saturday, May 7, 2pm
Tel: 01227 769075

AN unusual garden is being created in a new show by contemporary clown Danny Schlesinger. His tale The Balloon Gardener is coming to Canterbury next month.

Danny, a wild- balloon tamer, has run out of balloons and must grow his own. The tamer turns gardener, and seeds of hilarity are sown as he attempts to cultivate bold, colourful, latex shapes in pots. Schlesinger is an award-winning performer who works in theatre, circus, cabaret, television and film. He has worked with The Royal Opera, The Natural Theatre Company, Circus Sensible and Dynamic New Animation. His film and TV credits include Happiness (BBC2), Jack Dee's Sunday Service (CH4) and Sniffer – a Norwegian short film that has won many awards, including the best short film at Cannes 2006. The Balloon Gardener is a big-hearted show with even bigger balloons and is entertaining for children of all ages.

• The Balloon Gardener is being performed at the Gulbenkian Theatre on Saturday, May 7, at 2pm. Call the booking office on 01227 769075 or visit www.thegulbenkian.co.uk. Tickets £8, Encore! members £7. Family And Friends ticket £35 for five people. The show is suitable for children aged four and over.

Comedy Laugh with this top trio

Ramada Hotel, Dover

Thursday, April 28
Tel: 01304 872843

THREE top comedy acts will be appearing at the Ramada Hotel in Dover.

John Ryan is an Edinburgh Festival Highlight Award-winner. Rhodri Rhys was a chartered surveyor before turning his hand to comedy. From 1990 to 2002 he lived in Prague, starting performing after meeting visiting comics. The headline act is Martin Beaumont. He is a true old-school stand-up and master of the one-liner and has made many TV appearances. He won the Time Out Critics' Choice for his show Sunspots.

• Doors open 7pm. Show time 9pm-over 18s only. Tickets £12.95 for comedy only; £20.95 comedy and two-course meal.

Dance Flames Of Desire

Tunbridge Wells

Sunday, May 1, 7.30pm
Tel: 01892 530613

WITH the success of TV shows like Strictly Come Dancing, Latin dance is becoming increasingly popular in the UK. Now one of the world's top tango companies is coming to Tunbridge Wells. Tango Fire has just finished sell-out seasons in New York, Barcelona, Hamburg and Cape Town. The Argentinian company is now returning to the UK with new show Flames Of Desire.

The dancers show some of the speediest footwork and tightest twirling in the business.

Flames Of Desire features 10 sensational dancers including three world tango champions and one of Argentina's finest young singers.

• Tickets to see Flames Of Desire are priced at £23 and £25. Visit www.assemblyhalltheatre.co.uk for further details.

BOOK REVIEWS

New Beginnings

By Fern Britton

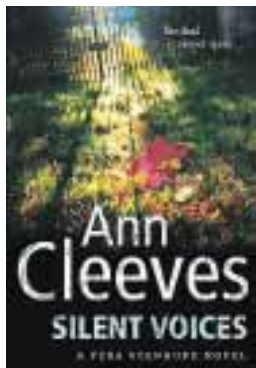

Harper Collins, £12.99

FORMER This Morning presenter Fern Britton, who hosts a new Channel 4 chat show this spring, examines the cut-throat world of TV in her debut novel New Beginnings.

The daughter of actor Tony Britton, she charted her own life several years ago in her autobiography, including the divorce from her first husband, TV executive Clive Jones, with whom she had three children, and the lingering depression that she has battled through much of her adult life.

Mum-of-four Britton, who married TV cook Phil Vickery in 2000 and with whom she has a nine-year-old daughter, is tougher than she seems if the TV world she describes in her novel is authentic.

"You have to remember you're not a heart surgeon," she reflects. "When you make a mistake or a fool of yourself, or someone's unpleasant, you think 'Well, what I'm doing isn't frightfully important'."

Silent Voices

By Ann Cleeves

Macmillan, £17.99

THE world of television used to be a mystery to unassuming crime-writer Ann Cleeves, who spends much of her time working on a laptop in the kitchen of her 1930s semi.

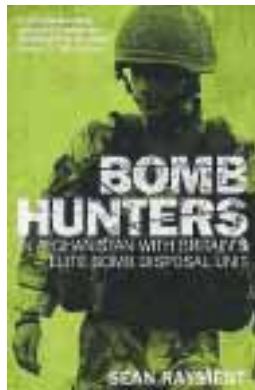

Then last year the 56-year-old award-winning author from Northumberland was hurled headlong into the frantic TV world of producers and directors, actors and scriptwriters.

Her character, DI Vera Stanhope, a dowdy spinster with a sharp brain and cruel wit, is being brought to life on screen by Brenda Blethyn in the ITV1 series Vera.

Cleeves, a grandmother-of-five, remains relatively unfazed by the whole experience but still cannot quite believe how Vera drew the attention of TV executives.

"It was like a fairytale," she recalls. "A scriptwriter for ITV went into her local Oxfam and bought a second-hand copy of The Crow Trap, the second of the Vera books, and liked it."

"They were looking for a strong female lead for a detective show, so it wasn't just chance. Then they optioned it and it all happened very quickly."

Bomb Hunters

By Sean Rayment

Harper Collins, £18.99

THIS ex-paratrooper shadowed the Army's elite bomb-disposal experts in the most dangerous regions of Afghanistan as they risked life and limb to defuse deadly below-surface Improvised Explosive Devices (IEDs).

It's hard to imagine what it must feel like to 'walk the line' – to locate and clear an area of bombs, when one mistake is likely to be your last.

And with the Taliban's non-stop production of IEDs – the crudely-made but highly effective mines that have killed and maimed so many British soldiers in Afghanistan – that job becomes more deadly every day.

In his new book, he reveals the heart-stopping situations soldiers have found themselves in, what makes them tick, and whether any real progress is being made in the war against the Taliban.

Jaguar E-type

Haynes, £25

I'M not a huge car enthusiast, writes Ed Hill. If you look at my motoring history, I have always gone for practicality over style, but growing up in the 70s there was one car that seemed the epitome of speed and grace: the Jaguar E-Type.

My brother would tell me his ideal car was a G registration 4.2-litre fixed-head coupé model. As a seven-year-old, I thought there was something extra-special about the 'G reg' car, not realising it was just the year the motor was bought.

The E-Type certainly comes from a different era, when petrol was 22 pence a gallon and designers didn't give a damn about crash-test results or pedestrian safety.

If I am ever in the position to be able to afford a classic sports car, the E-Type would be at the top of the list – for the moment, though, I can at least own a book about it.

As part of its Great Cars series, Haynes has released a new edition about Jaguar's most famous sports car. Not surprisingly, the book is full of high-quality pictures and technical cutaways of the sleek speedster.

At its launch in 1961, the E-Type was revolutionary. It was cheap compared with the more expensive Ferraris, Porsches and Aston Martins, but its performance outstripped them all.

The book is full of all the information the E-Type enthusiast could need. It covers all the models from the early 3.8-litre-engined cars to the 1970s British Leyland models with their gas-guzzling V12s that eventually fell foul of US safety and emission laws.

There are also some interesting nuggets of information. For example, Roger Moore was due to drive an E-Type in the TV series The Saint, but Sir William Lyons, the boss of Jaguar, was too penny-pinching to loan them a car so he ended up in a Volvo.

If you love British sports cars, this book is an ideal read and now when I watch repeats of the Italian Job and my eyes wince as two E-Types get bulldozed off the road by the Mafia, at least I can recognise the suspension system as they tumble down the mountain.

Local scene Funke brings music to art

i Scream and Rock Gallery, Margate

Monday, April 25, 6pm

Email mark@iscreamandrock.co.uk

MUSICIAN Funke and the Two Tone Baby is launching his debut single at the i Scream and Rock gallery in Margate. Funke, otherwise known as Daniel Turnbull, has been carving a name out for himself through relentless performing in east Kent. His eccentric and occasionally erratic character is reflected in his debut single, Darkest Of Days, released through Canterbury Christ Church University's student-run record label, C3U Records. Mark Downing, owner of i Scream and Rock, said: "We came to Margate inspired by the beauty of the location and the huge amount of creativity in the area. I first caught Funke live at a local festival last year and I thought his sound was hugely fresh."

Del gets independence as the Trotters start trading

Thursday, April 28, 9pm, BBC One

SOME people may think the BBC has missed a trick in not bringing Only Fools And Horses back for the royal wedding.

Del Boy Trotter would surely have been in his element flogging misprinted Wills and Kate memorabilia to gullible tourists on his Peckham market stall. But instead we've got the next best thing, the third instalment of the acclaimed prequel series Rock And Chips.

For anyone who's missed previous offerings, it's set in the 60s, when Del Boy (James Buckley) was still a tricky teenager and Rodney a baby.

Mum Joan (Kellie Bright) is still the breadwinner, holding down a job at The Ritz cinema while also working as Freddie Robdal's (Nicholas Lyndhurst) charlady. In fact, she'd like to set up home with Freddie permanently but decides to put off the divorce from her feckless husband Reg until Del is settled and ready to step out on his own.

At least her son's relationship with funeral director's daughter Barbara (Jessica Ashworth) is going well... until things take a turn for the worse when he manages to get trapped in a kitchen with her inebriated mother.

As in the first two prequels from 2010, watch out for special guest appearances, with comedian Mel Smith, actress Paula Wilcox and cockney cheeky geezer Phil Daniels all contributing.

Young Del, James Buckley of Inbetweeners fame, said: "It's important to remember that this isn't an episode of Only Fools And Horses. That's already been done so brilliantly that there wouldn't be any point in trying to do it again."

Rock And Chips has already proved it has the quality to emerge from the shadows of its predecessor, but can it continue to shine the same way and for so many years without becoming too try-hard? In the words of Del himself, play it nice and cool, Trig, nice and cool.

IT'S A MYSTERY: Vera is the latest TV detective

Vera

Sunday, May 1, 8pm, ITV

AWARD-WINNING actress Brenda Blethyn OBE stars in Vera, a new murder mystery for ITV.

Having starred in Secrets And Lies, Pride And Prejudice and Atonement, Blethyn will now take on the role of Detective Inspector Vera Stanhope in a television adaptation of a book by crime-writer Ann Cleeves.

The script, which is based on the book Hidden Depths, has been adapted by Paul Rutman, who has written on both the Marple and Lewis sleuth series.

Our central character is obsessive about her work and driven by her own demons. If she's lonely, she doesn't show it and faces the world with caustic wit, guile and courage.

Her trusted and long-suffering colleague is Joe Ashworth, her right-hand man and surrogate son. And together they approach every new case with unparalleled gusto and professionalism.

Set in a modern-day Northumberland close-knit community, this engrossing murder mystery centres on the discovery of two bodies found floating in water but garlanded with wild flowers.

Vera and Joe are called to the stylised murder scene and as they start to interview the friends and relatives of the victims, sinister secrets are slowly unearthed.

International bestseller Ann Cleeves was the first author to win the inaugural CWA Duncan Lawrie Dagger, now the biggest crime-fiction prize in the world, for her novel Raven Black, part of the Shetland Island quartet.

Kate Bartlett, executive producer on the new show, said: "We're delighted to be in production on a new character-driven crime drama."

Blanket coverage of royal wedding, but who to pick?

NOT that you need reminding, but there is a small, modest, understated affair occurring on Friday, April 29, 2011. It is called the royal wedding. That's right, now is the time for the rumours as to what Kate Middleton will wear and how many pints Prince William sank on his stag do to finally stop. At last the moment for the official knot-tying can commence. With Prince Harry as best man and a less than jovial Queen awaiting Kate as an inlaw, the sparks could fly. There could be a jilting at the altar!

Royal Wedding

Friday, April 29, 8.30am, BBC One and ITV

But then again there might not be. It might all go swimmingly, with the lavish ceremony at Westminster Abbey acting as the icing on the cake of another memorable royal event soon to be consigned to the nation's history books. There will be blanket coverage on both BBC One and ITV1 all day. In fact, if you're not a fan of such state events, you're going to struggle to avoid it. But for those who love such life-changing decisions, you have also got a big choice to make. Do you follow the traditional route by watching the Beeb's coverage, or go with the more down-to-earth approach of ITV1?

With the wedding circus likely to dominate channels for 10 hours on the day, it is probably wise to channel-flick to get an all-round perspective but also to gather information on where to get hold of the latest Wills and Kate limited-edition dog-food bowl.

FILMS

1 Red Riding Hood (12A) Valerie (Amanda Seyfried) lives with her parents in a village plagued by a werewolf. Every full moon, the locals tether a pig to a stake as a sacrifice and lock their doors. When the beast claims the life of Valerie's sister under a blood-red moon, renowned werewolf-hunter Father Solomon (Gary Oldman) vows to unmask the killer in their midst. A love triangle and bloodshed ensues.

2 Tomorrow, When the War Began (12A) Ellie (Caitlin Stasey) asks her parents if she can borrow the family car so she can drive her friends to a remote sinkhole known as Hell for one final hurrah before the school holidays end. Best friend Corrie (Rachel Hurd-Wood), boyfriend Kevin (Lincoln Lewis), beauty queen Fiona (Phoebe Tonkin) and classmates head into the strange wilderness.

3 The Roommate (15, 91 min) Sara Matthews (Minka Kelly) leaves behind her troubles in Des Moines and starts anew at the University of Los Angeles, where she is welcomed by her wealthy roommate Rebecca (Leighton Meester). Friendship blossoms and Sara heals her wounded heart in the arms of hunky freshman Stephen (Cam Gigandet). Then life begins to spiral out of control.

4 Your Highness (15) Prince Thadeous (Danny McBride) has always been in the shadow of his handsome brother, Prince Fabious (James Franco), who is – unsurprisingly – the favourite of their father (Charles Dance) and the lusty maidens of the realm. Fabious returns from another quest with beautiful Belladonna (Zoëy Deschanel), who he intends to marry. But that is where this fairytale ends.

5 Winnie The Pooh (U) A narrator (John Cleese) welcomes us to Hundred Acre Wood, where Pooh (voiced by Jim Cummings) is rudely woken from his bed in order to help look for Eeyore's missing tail. Unfortunately, the rotund bear is more interested in finding a pot of honey than joining forces with Piglet (Travis Oates), Owl, Tigger and Christopher Robin on the expedition. A heart-warming tale, I mean tale.

NEW RELEASES

Rio U, 95 mins

CARLOS Saldanha, director of the phenomenally successful Ice Age films, ventures to sunnier climes for this joyous computer-animated romantic comedy.

Set to intoxicating Brazilian rhythms and bursting with colour, Rio follows the same template as Ice Age, introducing us to a menagerie of wacky and neurotic critters, whose fates rest in the balance.

Slapstick comedy here comes from a gang of larcenous monkeys, who pick the pockets of unsuspecting tourists, and a bulldog suffering from excessive saliva. Don Rhymer peppers his script with a few one-liners for parents, but Rio is skewed towards a younger audience, keeping the first flutterings of romance off screen.

Blu (voiced by Jesse Eisenberg) is a domesticated blue macaw who lives in relative luxury in the sleepy community of Moose Lake, Minnesota.

The bird doesn't want for anything, his hot chocolate made to perfection with six mini marshmallows by his doting owner and best friend Linda (Leslie Mann).

Brazilian conservationist Tulio (Rodrigo Santoro) arrives in Moose Lake to ask Linda to bring Blu to Rio de Janeiro, so the rare bird can mate with the only known female blue macaw, Jewel (Anne Hathaway). Eventually, Linda agrees and she and Blu head to South America, which is in the grip of carnival season.

No sooner has Blu met Jewel than the birds are kidnapped by greedy animal smugglers led by the nefarious Marcel (Carlos Ponce).

While Blu is a scaredy-cat, resigned to his fate, Jewel orchestrates a daring escape bid, evading the clutches of the smuggler's feathered sidekick, a conniving cockatoo called Nigel (Jemaine Clement).

However, since Blu is unable to fly, the macaws have limited escape options and as Nigel and the smugglers give chase, Blu and Jewel must rely on the help of a toucan called Rafael (George Lopez) and wise-cracking city birds Pedro (Will.i.am) and Nico (Jamie Foxx) to find their way back to Linda and Tulio.

Rio treads a familiar and predictable path but does so in style, opening with a glorious aerial sequence through the Brazilian rainforests, where birds soar and swoop in breathtaking choreographed formations.

Eisenberg has his character's neuroses down pat, Hathaway is gleeful as the feisty heroine, while Clement has a ball as the feathered fiend, whose tongue-in-cheek dialogue is littered with puns and delightful alliterations.

Scream4m 15, 110mins

AT a pivotal moment in Wes Craven's self-referential and self-reverential slasher and self-reverential slasher, a main character professes "The first rule of remakes: don't mess with the original."

The same rule applies to sequels, and screenwriter Kevin Williamson, who has penned the Scream series since its delicious 1996 debut, hasn't been shy about recycling ideas for the numerous outings of his knife-wielding menace, Ghostface.

For Scream4m, Williamson embraces past glories by bringing the terror full circle as surviving characters of the original reunite in the once-sleepy town of Woodsboro.

Neve Campbell, Courteney Cox and David Arquette reprise their iconic roles, flanked by some fresh faces.

It has been 10 years since the harrowing events of Scream 3 and survivor Sidney Prescott (Campbell) has penned a self-help book entitled Out Of Darkness. She embarks on a whirlwind book tour, culminating in a signing session in her home town.

Alas, no sooner has Sidney arrived in Woodsboro than Ghostface emerges from the shadows. Scream4m settles into a familiar pattern, nodding affectionately to earlier films while acknowledging new rules of the genre during the past decade. Performances teeter on hysteria for the final showdown when Ghostface's identity is revealed.

With the royal wedding dominating the headlines this month, romance is well and truly in the air. And when it comes to weddings, although in many cases the happy couple produce a list of gifts they would like to receive, sometimes it is a great idea to surprise them. After all – they might need a toaster or a tea set, but how about something to go alongside their set requests? That certainly shows that you've given their big day some thought – and adds that personal touch. If you have family or friends tying the knot in the coming weeks, here are a few ideas for wedding gifts to bring a smile to their faces. And to further celebrate Prince William's marriage to Kate Middleton – some have a bit of a patriotic element.

Splash out on a new bathroom for a stylish way to upgrade your property

THE bathroom can be as stylish as any other room in the home. The right sort of equipment and décor can make sure it is a prize asset, combining its functional nature with a welcoming ambience.

The key to getting the room to utilise its full potential is space – with vital necessities stored away to allow the room to have a clean and uncluttered look.

Geoff Wells, bathroom planning expert for Dolphin, explains how to maximise the space in your bathroom.

He said: "Space can often be limited, so careful planning of storage solutions and overall design is vital in creating the perfect bathroom. Even a larger bathroom can be spoiled by a badly laid-out design that does not use the room to its full potential."

"Custom-made floor and wall cabinets offer a great solution for storage, keeping surfaces clear and the bathroom looking streamlined, while stylish vanity units with shelves, drawers and cabinets hide belongings from view and can be built around sanitary-ware to cover unattractive pipework."

Making the most of floorspace is also important in keeping the room looking good.

Geoff said: "Corner vanity units are especially suitable for smaller bathrooms, making the most of an unused area. To really maximise space, consider space-saving solutions such as corner baths or sinks to make the most of an unused area of the room and opt for wall-hung sanitary ware, cabinets and towel rails to leave floor space clear and the bathroom accessible."

With space at a premium in many of today's homes, creating ample storage and workspace is essential to the smooth running of your home, which is why the best designers are able to design your room to its best use, giving you units that fit perfectly and innovative features to match – all designed to make life easier.

Dolphin has branches across Kent, at Westwood Cross in Broadstairs, the centre of Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells and Aylesford.

A vital part of the bathroom is, of course, the shower unit.

Triton has showers available in six chic high-gloss and matt finishes, and it is possible to choose a shower that works perfectly with your colour scheme or perhaps even adds a touch of bold contrast to your look.

For contemporary styling, try the sleek metallic look of gun metal and brushed steel. Or the striking matt black pearl and riviera sands for a more natural stone look, which brings a feeling of texture into your bathroom scheme.

The luxury designer feel extends to controls, too. One central knob selects the temperature, while soft-touch electronic technology incorporated into the buttons means the shower can be switched on with ease.

All models have an integrated phased shutdown system, which flushes out all remaining hot water so there are no nasty surprises for the next user. This has the added benefit of prolonging the life of the shower, so saving you money in the long run.

Renville House near Canterbury

■ FOUR ACRES ■ FIVE BEDROOMS
■ CONSERVATORY ■ FOUR RECEPTIONS
■ MATURE GARDENS ■ PADDOCK

Renville House is situated in a magnificent parkland setting with an extremely important group of historic former farm and estate buildings, designated as a Conservation Area.

It is a home that echoes the splendour of this most elegant of ages and is sited in the heart of beautiful east Kent.

The surrounding countryside of woodland, orchards, pasture and arable fields is an area notable for its stunning landscape – yet the house is just two miles from the cathedral city of Canterbury.

The house itself is of classical Georgian style and constructed of yellow stock bricks with a symmetrical façade, sash windows, deep box eaves and a pair of eaves brackets.

The elegant and well-proportioned accommodation has 10ft-high ceilings in many rooms and retains numerous original features such as picture rails, tall skirtings and original bells which would have been used to summon home-helpers.

There are also many fine fireplaces and the property has been beautifully refurbished with a superb kitchen/breakfast room, excellent conservatory/entertaining room which has a large glazed lantern roof and electrically-operated top windows to provide an airy and light space.

The four further receptions are also ideal for entertaining and a utility room includes a washing-machine, dryer and cloakroom.

The sitting room has a fireplace with a wood-burning stove, display cupboards each side of the chimney breast and French doors to the conservatory.

There are four principal bedrooms, one en-suite bathroom and one en-suite shower room and a family bathroom on the first floor together with a fifth bedroom on the second floor and an extensive lower groundfloor cellar.

In total the home has 5,369 square feet of floor space and has all mains services with gas-fired central heating and a security system.

Fitted carpets are included in the price, but fixtures and fittings are excluded – although they may be available by separate negotiation.

A tree-lined private drive leads to the house and neighbouring properties and there is a large gravel parking and turning area in front of it.

To the front of the house are many mature trees and shrubs, including a splendid magnolia and a formal garden laid to grass with borders and hedged boundary to the left.

The gardens extend each side to the back with further lawns and mature trees together with a large area of decking beside the rear of the home.

There is a further gated entrance with additional parking and access to the detached double garage and neighbouring detached store.

Post and rail fencing runs along the north-west garden boundary and the paddock beyond.

Bridge village offers a good range of local shops and amenities including the highly-regarded primary school, a health centre and tennis courts.

Educational facilities in Canterbury include an extensive range of schools in both the independent and state sector.

These include King's, St Edmunds and Kent College public schools and a grammar school. The city is also home to a number of further educational establishments, including the University of Kent.

The city has a wide range of cultural and leisure amenities, including the new Marlowe Theatre, which will reopen in October after a massive redesign.

There are also museums, excellent shopping facilities and a great range of pubs, bars and restaurants.

The St Lawrence Ground is the home of Kent County Cricket Club and there is an impressive number of renowned golf courses, as well as further sporting opportunities at the Polo Farm centre.

Giant cowl being lowered onto the roundel of a brand new "Oast" house

It was a somewhat delicate operation when Hillreed Homes carefully lowered a giant white cowl onto the pinnacle of a roundel at Oast Court Farm, Wateringbury Road in East Malling, Kent where the company is building a magnificent three roundel "Oast" house.

"It was quite a tricky manoeuvre which had to be repeated on a further two roundels on this magnificent house", says Dean Markall, Sales and Marketing Director at Hillreed Homes. "This is a rare opportunity to purchase a brand new "oast" style home. The five bedrooms, four reception rooms property stands at the head of this private gated development which backs onto open fields. All the properties are architecturally designed to reflect the Kentish vernacular."

Oast Houses are dotted around the beautiful Kent countryside, a County nicknamed the "Garden of England". These magnificent edifices are striking in their appearance with their magnificent roundels and bright white cowl and weather vanes.

The history of the Oast Houses encompasses, in a microcosm, the agricultural activity of the 19th century. The Oasts played an important role as they were designed for a very important reason – it was for the drying of the locally grown hops, the vital ingredient in brewing beer.

The hops had to be dried swiftly on the day of harvest and this resulted in a proliferation of Oast Houses. Once the hops were stacked on the upper floors a fire was lit below and the air channelled through the floor to dry the hops. The resultant humid air was funnelled up and away via the conical roof of the kiln through the cowl.

Throughout the years the kilns' design changed beginning as square towers which were easier to build, then around 1840 it was felt that round kilns would provide better heat distribution, this in turn was reversed and a decision was made that square kilns were better!

However what is probably better for everyone in the 21st century is a home built in the magnificent iconic shape of an Oast House, and developers Hillreed Homes has done just that.

The joy of owning an Oast House doesn't stop there; inside you have the pleasure of two floors built "in the round" so these curved rooms are exceedingly eye catching; an interiors designers ultimate challenge and greatest reward!

Hillreed Homes recently built an Oast House at Kings Hill, the highly desirable residential area in West Malling in Kent and the company is now progressing well to completion of the one at Oast Court Farm. This is an extremely spacious home with three roundels comprising bright, white wooden cows on the top of their handsome dusky red conically shaped roofs.

The whole attached property offers an amazing 3007 sq feet of living space with the living room, dining room, impressive staircase and breathtaking fully fitted kitchen created in the three roundels. On the first floor the master bedroom, plus three further bedrooms have all been built in the roundels. Such is the size of the property it has also created, in a more conventionally shaped home, two storeys comprising an almost 17 foot family room plus study with bedroom two and bathrooms on the first floor.

This home is so magnificent in its elegant design and appointments that anyone interested may find it prudent to visit the site at this early stage to appreciate its location, appearance and lifestyle opportunity. There is only one Oast House, so if you want an individual home of character and class, visit Oast Court Farm now. Price £900,000

Other properties at the development start from £480,000 for a four bedroom property with two garages. The development offers a private, brand new tennis court and changing rooms for use of residents and their friends. ■

IN LINE: The Maidstone area has witnessed many new houses in recent years – these are at Langley

All roads lead to our county town

THE River Medway runs through the heart of the county town and has recently been a focus for property development. Maidstone has seen a number of apartment blocks built alongside the banks, leading to an influx of new residents, mainly drawn from the professional classes. New shopping facilities, restaurants, bars and pubs have also opened their doors. The majority of prices along the riverbank for apartments range from about £155,000 to £210,000, although there are some to be had at a lower cost. Recent developments have focused on the traditional importance of the river – even leading to the development of homes in shapes resembling the prows of boats. Away from the river area, prices fall, especially on the outskirts of the town itself. Further out still, there are some extremely attractive homes to be had in villages such as Harrietsham, Bearsted and Sutton Valence. Historically, the area around the town saw some genuine bargains, particularly in the village of Hollingbourne, when the high-speed railway line was first planned. Many people felt that homes would be blighted by noise and property was on the market for values well below what would normally be asked. Noise-prevention measures made the impact of the trains less than first anticipated, so some buyers did very well. Some homes in the Yalding area have suffered water damage to ground floors and exteriors from flooding. Subsequent improvements to river flow have helped counter this threat – but insurance premiums in some villages along the Medway remain high. A feature of the area is the distinctive oast-house design, and developer Hillreed Homes is constructing a distinctive three-roundel house in that style at East Malling. And of 30 new homes at The Point development, many have already been sold, with just eight two-bedroom apartments still available. As the seat of local government for Kent and home to the headquarters of the police and fire services, Maidstone is arguably the most important town in the county. The housing developments of recent years have reflected this prestige and the town and its surroundings continue to be a desirable place in which to live.

PROPERTY SPOTLIGHT ON MAIDSTONE

What makes it special
AS the county town, Maidstone is one of the most important places in Kent. Home to excellent shopping opportunities, bars, pubs and restaurants and with a good selection of hotels, it is also an excellent base for exploring one of the most beautiful parts of the country. It is excellently sited with quick motorway and rail access to other parts of the South East, London and beyond. It is also close to what has been described as “the loveliest castle in the world” – Leeds, with its wide moat, rolling parkland surroundings and golf course. New developments have sprung up along the River Medway, which combine easy access to the town centre with stunning vistas with the latest conveniences of 21st-century living.

Room to improve
SOME of the outlying parts of the town are in need of regeneration, particularly some housing estates where, although access to the main part of town is good by public transport, some amenities are thin on the ground. Parking in the centre can be a trying experience and the traffic system is not one that copes with heavy flow, leading to slow movement and occasional gridlock.

Prices
THERE are good opportunities for bargains, especially in the way of apartments in the town. The market itself is reasonably buoyant and fluid, with properties coming on to the market and being snapped up reasonably quickly. It is also desirable for commuters. Rental properties continue to be available, with the major emphasis on smaller apartments in the town. Village property is some of the most attractive in the county, especially along the River Medway towards Tonbridge.

Shops
THERE are two excellent shopping centres which showcase almost all of the main high-street brands. Both are within yards of each other, making shopping in the town an easy experience on foot. Some of the more unusual stores can be found just away from the centre and there is also a large number of out-of-town superstores. Nearby villages provide an alternative with a range of speciality stores.

Schools
THE town and surrounding villages have a wide range of schools at both primary and secondary level. Villages such as Boughton Monchelsea, Barming, Coxheath, Allington, Detling and East Farleigh all have their own schools at primary level, fostering a feeling of community and accessibility. Results have been extremely good in recent years, especially at Invicta Grammar School, where they have been outstanding, with 74 per cent A*/B grades at A-level and 62 per cent A*/A at GCSE. Bower Grove, Five Acre Wood and the independent school at Sutton Valence all provide both primary and secondary education on-site.

Connections
MAIDSTONE has easy access to both the M2 and M20 which lead from the coast to London via the M25, which is also very close to the town. There are three railway stations with lines leading to London and Ashford International for services to the Continent and Gatwick airport via Tonbridge. The Channel Tunnel is just a short drive away and can be reached directly via the M20. The town is also set to receive high-speed trains in the near future, which will see journey times slashed on the route to London. It will also provide services to stations serving the Olympics.

What's on
THE Hazlitt Theatre in the centre of town offers a range of performances, with music, comedy and drama all featuring. Mote Park has seen some large-scale music events, including a festival headlined by Madonna. More usual are shows featuring the town's multi-cultural community. As well as an excellent central museum and art gallery, the town also has two more unusual collections, the Tyrwhitt Drake Museum of Carriages and Museum of Kent Life.

Around and about
LEEDS Castle is one of the finest attractions in the UK and features a maze in its beautiful setting, which is often used for films. The Medway has a series of walks along its banks and boat trips run from the town – kayaks can also be hired. Kits Coty House, just outside the town, is one of the more unusual attractions – comprising a number of standing stones that date from prehistoric times set on the North Downs, itself an excellent site for walking.

Insignia 4x4 gets a grip

By Sam Davison

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

LIST prices for cars are the grown-up version of fairy tales, so Vauxhall's 4x4 version of the Insignia is even more of a cut-price bargain than it appears.

Starting at £23,670 – officially – it is already very attractive against a Quattro-equipped Audi A4 from around £29,000, even before you negotiate some kind of deal.

And that bit of haggling could also be a handy insurance policy to have if we carry on getting the horrible icy winters we've had lately.

You can, of course, go more barmy with an all-wheel drive Insignia by opting for the VXR performance flagship, but that starts from just shy of 33 grand and, while it behaves with more restraint than its sporty add-ons might suggest, it looks a bit over the top for some tastes.

So, if you want to have your cake and eat it, plus keep the fuel bills in check, go for a more everyday Insignia 4x4 such as our 2.0 CDTi SRi hatchback test car.

Ours had the sporty 160PS (158bhp) output but that is still good for an average of nearly 50mpg, helped by a six-speed gearbox that delivers for motorway cruising as well as the back doubles – this Insignia version costs £26,990.

And it has all of the hallmarks that have made the Insignia such a success in taking the fight to its arch rival, the Ford Mondeo: looks, value, a classy cabin and a good driving experience.

The Insignia rightly won the European Car of the Year award when it made its debut, also signalling Vauxhall's plan to move upmarket away from value brands like its General Motors stablemate, Chevrolet, and closer to the premium marques.

Any of the Big Three German brands would surely be delighted to have created such slip-

CLASS ACT: New Vauxhall 4x4 has all the features that helped make the original Insignia so popular, and new touches that enhance it even further perly yet distinctive lines as the Vauxhall.

Styling is enhanced by some neat touches: blacked out door pillars lower an already coupe-style roofline, while the much discussed 'blade' detail at the back of the front wheel is a master touch suggesting power and muscle – the signature also appears on the smaller Astra, which uses the same design ethos.

Taken as a whole, it seems that Vauxhall is saying: "If you want practicality then buy our Zafira – this car is about style."

If the car's sharp suit worries BMW/Merc/Audi then the lining offers no relief. I won't say the German trio have cheapened their cabins, but the Insignia suggests they have been matched by the mainstream. It is a class act let down only a few corners being cut on the detail.

But then we need to remember the Insignia still sells for prices – adjusted for the latest VAT – that are related to that of the Vectra, its staid predecessor.

Even a sporty 'rep's favourite' in SRi trim, with its aluminium pedals, climate control, comfy sports seats – including extendable seat base – quality sound system and smart alloys, starts at just £21,800... again, that's officially.

Fitted as standard is the cavernous cabin; the Insignia might be a far cry from the rather boxy and unlamented Vectra, but it is no less spacious.

In fact, while the big-selling and smart looking Sports Tourer estate version must be a temptation, I would argue that the huge boot of the hatchback should make most owners more than happy.

In this 4x4 form is also retains the crowd-pleasing Insignia chassis profile: good bump absorption and refinement as well as composure when pushed hard.

For those who think 'funky chunky' 4x4/off-roader styling has had its day, but still crave the reassurance of an extra pair of driving wheels, the Insignia makes a compelling case with its looks and value.

Free fuel with the new Yaris

TOYOTA is giving customers six months' free fuel on a new Yaris ordered before April 30 and registered before June 30.

That's around 5,000 miles at the wheel of the 1.0-litre VVT-i petrol Yaris, which returns an official 55.4mpg combined cycle fuel economy.

The buyer gets a pre-paid card worth £548.15 to use with a PIN at any UK retailer.

Saab offers its best deals yet

SAAB is celebrating spring with what is claimed to be the Swedish premium brand's most competitive range of customer finance packages.

The deal includes new personal contract purchase plans for private buyers, contract hire rates from £289 per month, zero deposit, zero interest finance offers, and three-years' free servicing for new customers.

VW ready to run Amarok

GERMAN giant VW enters the pick-up market with the classy looking yet rugged Amarok on May 1, appealing to both private and commercial buyers.

Needless to say in this Tonka Toy sector of the market, it will also be offering a huge range of accessories for customisation to compete with established players like the Mitsubishi L200 and Nissan Navara.

Skoda best, says Driver Power

SKODA was the biggest winner in the UK's premier car ownership survey, Auto Express's Driver Power.

The Czech brand broke new ground by being named Best Manufacturer for the third year in a row, while its Superb was crowned top car in the prestigious Driver Power Top 100 chart.

Rounding off a fantastic year, the Skoda Yeti SUV was voted second and the hatchback/estate Skoda Octavia came fourth.

British models made their mark, too, with both Jaguar and Vauxhall faring well. The Jaguar XF, which took top spot in 2009, came third this year, while the Vauxhall Insignia was a new entry in sixth position. The Sunderland-built Nissan Qashqai was fifth.

Graham Hope, acting editor of Auto Express magazine said: "With over 23,000 people taking part in this year's survey, Driver Power has again delivered the authoritative verdict on which cars are the best in Britain to own. It's been another fantastic year for Skoda, and its success is thoroughly deserved. The Superb is a great car and a worthy winner of the Driver Power Top 100, while the brand's achievement in also being named best manufacturer confirms just how highly regarded it is. When it comes to blending quality with value, few brands do it so well as Skoda."

Robert Hazelwood, director of Skoda UK, said: "Receiving the Best Manufacturer award in the

SUPERB EFFORT: Skoda was named Driver Power's best manufacturer, and its Superb (above) No.1 in its top 100 list

Auto Express Driver Power Survey for the third consecutive year is fantastic news for Skoda UK.

"We have a strong dealer network that takes excellent care of its customers and we are delighted to hear that Skoda customers are telling us that they are pleased with the whole brand experience.

"We believe Skoda offers engineering excellence and exceptional value for money. This is evidenced in the survey, with three of our products finishing in the top four places."

Driver Power is now in its tenth year and questions motorists on all aspects of the ownership experience, including reliability, running costs and comfort.

MVP: OJ Reed was a star man

Unfancied Crusaders win final

VICTORY in the Division Two play-off final completed the most successful season in Medway Park Crusaders' history last weekend.

The Gillingham-based side won a thriller against Westminster Warriors 75-72 in Manchester last Sunday.

American import star OJ Reed also picked up the Most Valuable Player award after hitting 28 points in the final.

James Vear, Crusaders' head coach, felt the win earned the respect of their peers.

He said: "The biggest thing for me was no-one in the country outside of the club gave us a chance of winning it. We had a poor finish to the season because we had a lot of injury problems, but we had everyone back for the play-offs.

"The players wanted to prove a point that on their day they're the best team in the league. I'm really proud of them."

Conway eyes title shot after IndyCar triumph

By David Pritchard

david.pritchard@archant.co.uk

LESS than a year after surviving a life-threatening crash, Mike Conway used his first-ever IndyCar victory last weekend to thank the team which took a gamble to sign him in the off-season.

The 27-year-old took the honours at the IndyCar Grand Prix of Long Beach on Sunday, reaching the top step of the podium for the first time since winning as a GP2 driver at Monaco in 2008.

It completed a remarkable return to form for Conway, whose career was in doubt last May when he crashed at 220mph in the Indianapolis 500. Injuries ruled him out for the rest of the season and he had not got back behind the wheel when Andretti Autosport signed him in February.

In only his third race back Conway came up trumps in California and the Sevenoaks racer believes it was made all the sweeter by the months of rehabilitation required to regain his fitness.

He said: "I've been knocking on the door since the start of the season, I've been qualifying well, but it's important to get a win this early in the season, it takes the pressure off a little.

"There's been a lot of hard work done in the off season and all that's paying off now. It's great to be able to enjoy it this early and cement my place in the team. They put a lot of faith

CHEQUERED FLAG:

Mike Conway nets his maiden IndyCar win at Grand Prix of Long Beach in California in me so this was a big thank you to them."

Sunday's race was far from straightforward. Qualifying in third, Conway was in contention with the front runners until a mistake at a pit stop saw him drop to 21st. Even with 25 laps remaining he was only 11th, but a big accident elsewhere saw him take advantage. Keeping his tyres warm for the restart, Conway made his decisive charge with a series of bold overtaking moves to take the lead.

Once in front there were no traces of nerves as he opened up a significant gap on nearest challenger Ryan Briscoe. Conway kept his cool until crossing the line, which he admits was an emotional moment.

"As I came out the last corner I knew I had won," he said. "The guys all came on the radio, but it took me three or four corners before I could say anything. It's been a while since I won, but you never forget."

The victory catapulted the ex-British Formula Three champion up to fifth in the early-season individual standings. It has also given him added belief of becoming a regular visitor to the podium during the rest of the season.

He said: "Before we might have gone to races hoping for a good finish, but now we know we can win races. It's great to be up there in the top five and we can really focus on a championship challenge to try and at least stay where we are."

SUPERBIKES

Kent duo hoping to use Brands crowd in a push for BSB glory

BRANDS Hatch provides the backdrop for the return of the British Superbike Championship (BSB) this weekend, with two Kent riders bidding to shine in front of their home crowd.

After a two-year crack at the World Superbike Championship, Sheppey's Shane 'Shakey' Byrne is back on the British circuit and looking to reproduce the form which saw him lift the BSB title in 2003 and 2008.

He said: "It's been a long winter but I am really ready to race now. The Brands Hatch weekend is going to be massive; it is a track I have missed dearly since the last time I raced in BSB back in 2008. I always seem to get lots of local support there and I want to do a good job for the fans and the team."

Meanwhile, Beckenham-born Tommy Hill is also expected to be among the ACTION: Superbikes returns to Brands title challengers, having finished third in the 2010 championship.

He said: "I just want to get to Brands Hatch. I need to push on at my home circuit, get the best results I can for the team and then prepare for the following weekend."

The BSB races, two of 18 at Brands across the weekend, both take place on Bank Holiday Monday.

RALLYCROSS

Rallycross contenders descend on Lydden Hill

LIAM Doran begins his quest to conquer Europe this weekend as he lines up for the first round of the new FIA European Championship for Rallycross Drivers at home circuit, Lydden Hill.

The Sittingbourne driver, who dramatically crashed out of the British championship opener at Lydden last month, is among the favourites for the 2011 European crown, having finished third in his debut season.

Racing for Swedish team KHM Citroen, Doran has been widely tipped to become the first Brit to lift the title since 1992, although Norway's Sverre Isachsen has taken top honours in each of the last two seasons and is closing in on a hat-trick.

Doran claimed two race wins last season and will be hoping to cap a memorable weekend for Lydden, affectionately titled 'the home of rallycross', after hosting the sport's first-ever event 44 years ago.

The 24-year-old can expect fierce competition from Tanner Foust, the first American to drive in the series, who is returning to contest a full championship for the first time.

The action gets under way on Sunday at 12.30pm with tickets priced at £15. Racing on Monday is on at the same time and costs £20.

TOURING CARS

WITH TIM HARVEY

Touring car legend TIM HARVEY has teamed up with Archant KOS Media this season to bring you a weekly column as he looks to retain his Porsche Carrera Cup title. Harvey, who was brought up in Sevenoaks and schooled in Tonbridge, is in his second spell with Wrotham-based team Motorbase Performance. He describes his defence of the Carrera Cup crown as well as sharing his thoughts, as an ITV commentator, on the British Touring Car Championship

'Motorbase win a great reward'

"We've all just about got our breath back from some action-packed British Touring Car Championship (BTCC) racing at Donington last weekend.

There were three red flags in qualifying and we all wondered what sort of drama would be produced.

At the end of the day we had some of the most spectacular races I've seen in ages, there was something going on all the time. Perhaps there was a bit too much drama and contact at times and it was a relief no-one was hurt in a couple of nasty accidents, one involving Jason Plato in particular.

It was great to see Mat Jackson get a win for Airwaves Racing. He's one of the top touring car drivers and I went on record at the start of the season to say if everyone was put in an equal car he would probably win, that's the regard I hold him in. Every time he's in the car he gets the most out of it.

There are many races where as a driver you deserve to win but don't. I'm sure lining up 10th on the grid Mat wasn't expecting to win, but after an accident in front of him he suddenly found himself second and he took his opportunity.

While everybody knows there's an element of luck involved you have to take the good with the bad.

It's the first win of the season for Motorbase Performance and it's a great reward for the team and richly deserved. I'm sure many more will come before the end of the season.

Getting that maiden win of the year on the board so early in the season changes the mood hugely.

Initially you have got speed and hope to get results, but until you get them on the board you always feel like you're under-performing. As soon as you get one win they can be like buses and more come along quickly, so the focus will be on following it up at Thruxton on the May Bank Holiday weekend.

While I got a lot of enjoyment commenting on the touring cars, my weekend behind the wheel in the Porsche Carrera Cup was frustrating. The weight issue is still a problem and it's turning it into a handicap race and there was no surprise the lightest driver in the field won the race and I finished sixth. Unless we can make the car a couple of tenths quicker than everyone else, we will continue to struggle.

Revamped St Lawrence Ground ready to open gates on a new era

By Glenn Pearson

glenn.pearson@archant.co.uk

THE St Lawrence Ground stages its opening game of the season since undergoing redevelopment work during the winter, but Kent chief executive Jamie Clifford has warned fans the facilities will not be fully completed until the beginning of the Twenty20 tournament in June.

Kent host Gloucestershire at their newly refurbished Canterbury ground in the LV= County Championship on Tuesday, which marks the first game held at the ground since its £8.2 million redevelopment.

The final touches will be added right up until Tuesday as the club prepare to open the gates for the first time.

"This week is the final mad dash to get everything finished off and looking reasonable," Clifford said. "It's not going to be the ground that it's going to be in Canterbury Week, but that's been the case for some time. The ground is shaping up, I just wish there was some grass on the banks, but I suppose you can't have everything."

"The message is to bear with us. It's the most significant change in infrastructure that Kent cricket has had ever. There will be teething problems, but we will get them right."

Work was expected to be completed on the dressing rooms on Thursday, while the only two areas not finished for the first home game of the season are the pavilion and the Leas

Ames stand. The new-look pavilion, based on the Long Room at Lord's, is still a couple of weeks away from completion, but Clifford believes it will be worth waiting for and should be ready in time for Kent's first Friends Provident t20 game at Canterbury against the Middlesex Panthers on June 18.

"It will be worth the wait, people have only got another couple of weeks and it will be up and running – let's get it right," he said. "I think it will be ready by the end of May, but of course that won't really mean anything until the first floodlit game in June."

"My aim is that when we return to Canterbury for that game in June, we are fully operational and in terms of our year for us, we will be running full steam ahead for the start of Twenty20 and that's been my focus."

"If we do that I think we would have achieved a great deal."

The club are hoping to welcome a big crowd over the Bank Holiday weekend when the Worcestershire Royals visit St Lawrence for the first Clydesdale Bank 40 game of the season next Sunday.

Parking for pre-paid cars next week is through the Old Dover Road entrance, while all other cars will park at the Nackington Road end of the ground.

BOXING

UNBEATEN: Chatham heavyweight Tom Dallas

American challenger is a step up for Dallas

UNBEATEN heavyweight Tom Dallas is preparing to fight American Zack Page in his first eight-round bout at next month's televised Medway Park boxing show.

The 25-year-old Chatham roofer believes the fight, on May 13, will represent a significant step up for him, with Page having only lost to English champion Tyson Fury on points when the pair met in Canada in December.

Dallas, who knocked out Gabor Farkas to record his 14th straight professional win at Medway Park in March, said: "In 53 fights, he's only been stopped three times so he's well known for going the distance. He went eight rounds against Fury so if I can stop him, it sends out a message."

"He's quite mean, he comes at you and he doesn't go away, so I've been trying to go backwards a bit more in training. I'm fit enough to go eight rounds, but I've got to learn to relax and let him come at me."

The May show will be screened live on Sky Sports and promoter Frank Maloney this week confirmed the eight-fight bill would feature three title fights.

Sam Webb's British light-middleweight title defence against Prince Arron tops the bill, with Swanley's Martin Welsh fighting Brian Rose for the English light-middleweight title. The vacant English super-featherweight crown will be contested by Akaash Bhatia and Ben Jones.

Kent hunting for loan bowler after Coles ruled out for three weeks with knee injury

AN INJURY to fast bowler Matt Coles has forced Kent back into the market for a loan player to bolster their seam department ahead of next week's home game against Gloucestershire.

The county have been exhausting their contacts all week looking to bring a seamer in on an emergency one-month deal after Coles was ruled out for three weeks with a knee injury.

The club's director of cricket, Paul Farbrace, has been in contact with several counties in Division One and will, together with skipper Rob Key, make a decision on who to bring in over the weekend.

Farbrace has ruled out the possibility of former loanee Charlie Shreck returning to the club, with the 33-year-old having forced his way back in to the Nottinghamshire side, but the Kent coach said there are other options.

"We spoke to counties in the winter and have kept in touch with them about what the options are," he said. "We have some options for next week and we'll revisit them at the end of this week once they know what they have got in terms of their bowlers being fit."

"We haven't spoken to any Division Two sides, they are all Division One sides and they have all been very helpful. They are people that I get on with at other counties and that helps. We are just hopeful that we can pull something off."

Previously critical about a 10-day break just two games into the season, Farbrace has changed his mind with the rest likely to prove crucial to Kent's injured seam attack. Darren Stevens was forced off the field in the side's crushing innings and 159-run defeat at Northamptonshire last week, with a recurrence of an ankle injury and was sent for a scan on Tuesday. But the all-rounder is expected to report fit for the LV= County Championship game at Canterbury next week.

"Where I have moaned before about a week off in April, with the injuries we have got it will give us a chance to get one or two back," he said. "Had we played this week, Darren Stevens wouldn't have been fit to play and that would have unbalanced us and gave us some real headaches with selection."

Azhar Mahmood was able to bowl in the nets this week as he looks to return from the hip and groin injury which ruled him out of Kent's first two games of the season, and could play on Tuesday.

After last week's defeat at Northants, Farbrace is looking to see his side bounce back.

He said: "The week off will help refocus the mind and it's up to us to come back fighting. It think it was a blip and we will bounce back."

Royal St George's ready for big day

By David Pritchard

david.pritchard@archant.co.uk

THE top figures at the organisers of The Open Championship were unanimous in their praise of Royal St George's after visiting the east Kent course this week.

It is less than 12 weeks before the world's best players return to Sandwich for the first time in eight years.

The Royal & Ancient Club (R&A), who have responsibility for golf's oldest major championship, held their annual launch for the world's media this week.

From the same room in the clubhouse where it was announced in 2007 that the renowned tournament was returning to Kent, the R&A's most senior members thanked Royal St George's for their efforts in preparing the course.

In an interview with this newspaper, Peter Dawson, chief executive of The R&A, told us why they keep returning to the county.

He said: "It's a combination of the strength of the golf course and its ability to test today's top players - this is right up there with its ability to do that - the infrastructure, the access to the course and the willingness of the club and its members to allow us to stage the event here. But it's the golf course that drives everything and this is one of the top golf courses in the world.

"Clearly we like to take The Open all around the country and the south of England is the biggest population centre in the country, so it's important we do have a venue here. It has been played in the past, of course, at Prince's and Deal [Royal Cinque Ports], but this is the one we use now and it's good that people from London and Kent have greater access than they would elsewhere in the country.

"I think there is a different atmosphere at a Scottish course compared with a Lancashire course with a Kent course. I noticed last time we were here that we did get a younger group on average coming to The Open - young professionals out of London came in quite big numbers, but let's see what happens this time."

Royal St George's and The R&A have worked closely together over the past three-and-a-half years to get the course ready in time for the opening day on July 14.

Only minor changes to the course have been made (see sidebar), extending it by 105 yards on the 2003 edition.

One of the more significant changes comes at the fourth hole, which has been changed from a par-five to a par-four, reducing the par for 18 holes to 70.

The alterations are intended to provide a stern test to the sport's biggest stars, as it did in 2003 when Ben Curtis was the only man to finish under par.

The American's win is one of 18 Opens won by non-Europeans in the 25 years since Scot Sandy Lyle memorably won in Kent in 1985. But there is every chance of the trophy falling into European hands this summer, with the continent's golfers enjoying a purple patch.

Dawson believes it could be a special tournament and the prospect of success from this side of the Atlantic could be reflected in the make-up of the spectators.

"The old guard is changing, you just have to

- 17th: Fairway widened to the right by six yards
- 18th: Fairway shifted right; one bunker moved closer to the green look at the world rankings to see that," he said.

"There are so many young players coming through from the UK and Europe. It may be we get quite a number of European fans coming over this year across and under the Channel from France and Germany, where golf is strong.

"I'm not sure if it happened in 2003 but I think it will happen more this time just because European players are coming through more strongly. We've got [Martin] Kaymer from Germany, young Matteo Manassero from Italy and that's the sort of thing that brings the spectators out."

GOLF

No concerns over low rough growth

THE dry spring has had a knock-on effect for Royal St George's, but the lack of rough is not a concern for greenkeepers.

The weather has a huge impact on the way the course will play when The Open Championship comes to Sandwich in July.

Despite a lack of growth in the rough over the last few weeks, Peter Dawson, chief executive at tournament organisers The R&A, is not worried.

He said: "Some years you get a dry spring period which results usually in the course being hard and fast, but the rough is a bit thin.

"We don't fiddle with this; we take what nature gives us. We're very pleased with the condition and state of the golf course at this point, but I think we'd all like to see a bit of rain some time soon."

GOLF

Transport changes set to smoothe spectator movement at The Open

IMPROVED traffic plans and a new high-speed rail link to London is set to help alleviate congestion around Sandwich during The Open Championship.

About 180,000 spectators are expected to flock to Royal St George's during the tournament in July. Its last visit in 2003 was deemed a success on a logistical level by The Royal and Ancient (R&A) Club, although there were some issues at peak times.

The main change eight years on is the addition of the high-speed rail line out of London. This week Southeastern announced there will be twice-hourly services running from St Pancras to Sandwich in the morning, heading back at the same frequency in the afternoon and evening.

With the 15-minute walk from the station to the course, it will take just 95 minutes to get from central London to Royal St George's - an hour faster than regular journey times. Extra mainline services will also be laid on.

For those arriving by road, the club itself can hold 12,000 cars, while a further 4,000 will be accommodated at a park-and-ride site at nearby Barville Farm.

Johnnie Cole-Hamilton, assistant championship director at The R&A, said: "We do recognise that Sandwich does cause us some challenges with traffic, and although we are using the same road infrastructure we did in 2003, in conjunction with Dover District Council and Kent County Council, we have learnt significant lessons from 2003 and have made some improvements to the one-way systems and the timings on some of the parking restrictions. The high-speed trains will also help a great deal."

Eurostar exit leaves fans split on Fleet name debate

By Steve Tervet

steve.tervet@archant.co.uk

SUGGESTIONS that Ebbsfleet United could revert back to the name Gravesend & Northfleet have met with a mixed reaction from the club's directors and supporters this week.

The club was initially renamed in May, 2007, when they agreed a shirt sponsorship deal with high-speed rail operator Eurostar, whose trains pass through the Ebbsfleet International Station – less than a mile from the Fleet's Stonebridge Road ground.

However, Eurostar will not renew the deal beyond the end of this season and club bosses have said they are open to the idea of switching back to Gravesend & Northfleet, the name used following the merger of Gravesend United and Northfleet United in 1946.

While factions of the Fleet support believe the club's gates would improve if the old name were to return, chairman Phil Sonsara is yet to be convinced.

He said: "I don't think it would get us another 100 to 200 fans through the turnstiles. If we lost fans because of the name change, I doubt they would come back.

"If there was a massive ground-swell from the fans to change back, the football club – from a commercial point of view – would have to listen. From a personal point of view, though, I come down on the side that it's a lot of money involved."

Name changes have been prevalent throughout the history of football in Kent, although there are fewer examples of re-named clubs reverting to their previous title. Chatham Town played for five seasons as Medway in the 1970s, while more recently, Margate operated as Thanet United between 1981 and 1989.

The debate has split opinion among the Fleet supporters, with many pointing to the significance of their 2008 FA Trophy win at Wembley – achieved as Ebbsfleet United.

Club director Jessica McQueen, formerly chairman of the supporter-run Fleet Trust, said: "Some fans want to go back to the old name, but we were Ebbsfleet when we won at Wembley, so it's a difficult decision. I'm an old Gravesend & Northfleet fan, but I wouldn't be too upset if we stayed as we are.

Picture: DAVE PLUMB

ALL CHANGE: Supporters will get chance to air their views on club's name after Eurostar opt out

"I know a handful of people decided not to come [when the name changed to Ebbsfleet] but I don't think they were significant numbers. Certainly, people come now because they love the football club, regardless of what it's called.

"I think [the Wembley win] is all part of the same history. When Gravesend and Northfleet joined together, that was part of the club's history and when the football club changed its name [to Ebbsfleet], maybe that was the time for the fans to be involved. For whatever reason, though, that didn't happen."

With just two games of the league season remaining, the Fleet are primed for a play-off campaign as they look to bounce back just 12 months after relegation from Conference Premier.

While Sonsara appreciates the strength of feeling surrounding the name-change issue, he urged the club's supporters to focus on more pressing matters over the coming weeks.

"I'm not going to drive it because there are far more important things going on," he said. "We need to nail contracts for the players and Liam [Daish, manager], and our biggest priority is we've got two games left and we don't want things to get in the way of that.

"The board met with Liam last week and I had a conversation with him this week. It's all positive stuff and we're pushing him hard to get as many of the squad signed up as possible."

Bentley back to assist Gills after loan spell

Picture: NIGEL COOKE/CAMBRIDGE FIRST

RETURN: Mark Bentley is back after a loan move

AFTER a rejuvenating spell out on loan in non-league, Mark Bentley has returned vowing not to let his Gillingham career end with a whimper.

The 33-year-old is coming to the end of his fifth season at Priestfield, but is uncertain about whether he will be offered a new contract when his existing deal runs out this summer.

Reduced to a bit-part role as a substitute, Bentley requested to go out on loan for the first time in his career in a bid to get himself match fit. A move to Cambridge United in the Conference Premier followed last month and he went on to start six games, scoring once.

The midfielder returned to the Gills last week and believes the time spent away has been beneficial as he looks to play a prominent role in the club's push for promotion.

He said: "It was good to get a change of scenery, which I might have needed at the time. I was getting a little frustrated and wasn't enjoying things [at Gillingham] because I just want to play. Cambridge have a good young team and I got what I wanted out of the move – I've got myself fit and will be banging on the door to play for Gillingham.

"I didn't want my career with the Gills to end in the way it looked like it might [as an unused substitute]. I'm determined to play a part in the last few games."

The move almost ended in farce, with Cambridge believing Bentley was eligible to play last weekend. The mistake was only discovered late on Friday, when the Gills contacted the player directly, avoiding a points deduction for United.

Promotion and relegation on the cards on derby day

EASTER Monday heralds a bumper football programme with a whole host of Kent clubs still entangled in promotion and relegation tussles.

Gillingham head north looking to complete a League Two double over Rotherham United, knowing victory would not only boost their own promotion chances, but also do serious damage to the Yorkshire side's hopes of making the play-offs.

In Conference South, three of the county's clubs are still in with a shout of going up. Anything less than a derby win at Dartford is likely to prove insufficient for Dover Athletic, while play-off hopefuls Welling United face a tough test at leaders Braintree Town.

Ebbsfleet United, seemingly destined for a shot at the play-offs, go to Thurrock.

Maidstone United and Folkestone Invicta meet in the Ryman Premier Division, knowing they could yet renew acquaintances one league down next season, while promotion-hopefuls Tonbridge Angels entertain Hastings United.

There are two Kent derbies in Ryman Division One South, with Faversham Town hosting Sittingbourne and Whitstable Town visiting Ramsgate.

Mos coach targets new signings to regain title

THE most challenging season of Kevin Parrish's tenure in charge of Invicta Dynamos ended last weekend with the coach focused on winning back the league title next season.

A 1-0 win in the second leg of their play-off semi-final to Wightlink Raiders last Sunday was not enough to reach the final as the Mos went out 4-1 on aggregate.

With the Raiders also winning the league, it means for the first time in Parrish's eight seasons in charge, the Gillingham-based side end a campaign without a trophy after finishing the regular season fourth in National League Division One South.

The Mos boss, who sacked import signing Daniel Calitri in December over his attitude, wants to come back stronger next season.

He said: "Just because we haven't won the league I'm not going to quit, that's not the way I work. I look at it that Wightlink are borrowing our title for the summer and we'll get it back next year.

"I'm looking to re-sign several players nice and early. Hopefully, we only need three or four new signings to change the squad's dynamic."
